WORLD COURT ISSUE FACES "LAME DUCK" CONGRESS SESSION

President Will Send Amended Protocol
To Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Gathering for its "lame duck" session, the seventy-first congress faced a complicated, uncertain legislative future today as a result of President Hoover's decision to send the amended world court protocol to the senate next week.

The President announced he would inject the world court issue into the short session, which lasts but three months, even though all his Capitol Hill leaders advised against it. His action certainly will complicate enactment of the administration's lengthy program for relief of agriculture and unemployment and may lead to the calling of an extra session of the new congress, which was elected early this month.

Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, immediately announced he would rush hearings on the protocol and report it to the senate "as soon as possible." Since Borah has been the leader in a movement for an extra session of the new congress, his attitude was considered extremely significant.

Capitol observers pointed out that action on the court treaty is a highly privileged question. Once it is reported to the senate, it can be called up at any time, taking precedence over all other legislation.

It can even displace appropriation bills once it is under debate. Consequently, any group of senators seeking to kill other legislation could call up the world court.

Senator James E. Watson, Republican floor leader, who opposes the court, declared he hoped the protocol would be held in Borah's committee until the next session of congress. He warned that action on the world court at the short session would wreck the administration's program for relieving agriculture and unemployment. Senator Vandenberg (R) of Michigan, joined in Watson's view.

Democratic leaders who favor the new protocol, indicated they opposed immediate action on the court because of the danger to agriculture and unemployment legislation.

Officers Beaten In At-

On Charge

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 29.—They will take Mrs. Blanton Orndorff, 55, away from her home Tuesday—never to return again—and in all probability her son, Arthur, and their little cur dog, for whose interrupted stay in the house she valiantly gave her life, now may be permitted to remain there unmolested by the authorities.

Constable George Bageant went to the Orndorff home yesterday to arrest the son on a charge of striking Chester Hockman. He was accompanied, as his special deputies, by Hockman—the prosecutor in the case—and George Pingley. Other members of the family said Hockman carried a shotgun. Anxious to protect her boy the mother probably realized Hockman's presence was to retrieve the dog, over which the assault charge against her son developed. Hockman went there once before and tried to take the dog away but Arthur resisted him and is alleged to have struck him. Hockman claimed the dog belongs to him.

Mrs. Orndorff, her husband and two other sons, Woodrow and Holland attacked the three officers. Pingley and Hockman were beaten so badly they were removed to the hospital.

The sons ran to a neighbor's house for help. When they returned they found their mother dead on the floor of the kitchen. A charge from a shotgun had pierced her stomach. The dog was howling in a corner.

No arrests have been made. The authorities believe the mother was shot perhaps by members of her own family when they relieved Hockman of the weapon. They are conducting an investigation.

PEACE WINNERS

These two men have been awarded Nobel prizes for their efforts to bring about world peace. Frank B. Kellogg, top former secretary of state, has been awarded the peace prize for 1929 in recognition of his work in developing the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. Dr. Nathan Soderblom, below, archbishop of Upsala, Sweden, winner of the 1930 prize, has worked for peace through a union of churches. This is the first time the prizes have been awarded since 1927. Each of the awards carries a grant of $48,000.

GUARDSMEN PATROL VIRGINIA HAMLETS BECAUSE OF STRIKE

Prevent Picketing At Cotton Mills By Strikers

DANVILLE, Va., Nov. 29.—National Guardsmen today patrolled two hamlets adjacent to the mill village of Schoolfield in Pittsylvania County.

The county authorities asked that they patrol the extra territory as a precautionary measure against possible disorder among the employees of the Dan River and Riverside cotton mills who went on a strike Sept. 29 in protest against a reported change in working conditions.

Meanwhile the soldiers refused to permit pickets to stand in front of the Dan River mills in Schoolfield, despite the assertions of union officials that orderly picketing is recognized as legal in this section, and the investigation started by Governor John G. Pollard. He promised the union he would learn why the troops chased the pickets from the mills' gates and burned or otherwise destroyed their improvised shacks and tents.

The strike here is perhaps the only such controversy being pursued in full blast and under scrutiny of approximately 1,000 armed soldiers in the United States. It may present a problem to William N. Doak, a native of this state, nominated as secretary of labor yesterday, if the senate confirms him for that office. James J. Davis, the retiring labor secretary, offered his good offices to arbitrate the grievance but the owners of the mills, it is said, declined the invitation by saying the workers had quit their employment.

Plans were being made to care for the families of the strikers who have received no pay, except that provided them by their union, for two months. Two carloads of coal were sent them today by sympathizers.

Norman Jamerson Held; Woman In Hospital Shot Four Times

Norman Jamerson, 53, colored, 803 E. Church St., is held by police on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, after he is alleged to have shot Mrs. Hattie Evans, 36, and her daughter, Beatrice Welch, 19, also colored, in front of the home of the women at 849 E. Church St., Friday night.

Mrs. Evans was shot four times. One .22 calibre bullet took effect in the right side of her abdomen, she was shot once in the side, once in the right leg and once in the right arm. Her daughter suffered a flesh wound in the abdomen.

The women were removed to the county infirmary hospital on order of Dr. F. M. Chambliss, and later Mrs. Evans was taken in a Nagley ambulance, to Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton in the belief that her abdominal wound might be serious. An examination disclosed that this was not the case, and she was brought back to the infirmary hospital Saturday afternoon. Chief of Police O. H. Cornwell and Dr. Marshall Best accompanied the wounded woman to the hospital.

Prior to her removal her statement was taken at the infirmary by Chief Cornwell and Prosecuting Attorney J. C. Marshall. The woman told the officers that she had lived with Jamerson in Columbus and Yellow Springs, and that they had come to Xenia from the latter place last August, and had lived together on Jefferson St. here.

Two weeks ago she said, they had some trouble and she and her daughter left the Jefferson St. house and have since been living at 849 E. Church St., while Jamerson has been rooming at 803 E. Church St. Jamerson came to their home Friday evening about 6 o'clock, she said, and remained there until she and her daughter decided to go out to spend the evening with friends on Jefferson St. Jamerson objected, she said, wanting them to go to his house instead. As she and her daughter left the house, she said, Jamerson pulled a gun and shot her daughter. The girl ran, and he grabbed her mother by the arm, firing the four shots as he held her.

Mrs. Welch ran to the home of Wade Allen in the neighborhood, and police were notified. Jamerson was arrested at the home of Mrs. Evans. Later the gun was found where he told police he had thrown it in the yard at the rear of his home. Jamerson told police that the girl had shot at him first, but police discredited this story.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—"I'm going to try to behave myself as well as I can."

A small, dark, complexioned youth with large, almost black eyes that looked searching, yet strangely bewildered, into the eyes of the reporter interviewing him, was speaking through a wire screen in the visitors' room at Ohio penitentiary here.

The screen threw odd shadows on his drab, gray suit and his already paling face.

Louis Kuhen, Jr., 17-year-old boy slayer, who began a life sentence in the state prison ten days ago for the murder of James Wheeler, Belmont County produce farmer, needed little encouragement to talk about himself.

The youthful convicted slayer was sentenced to "hard labor." He has been assigned to a job in the shirt factory at the prison "sewing shirts." Kuhen said that he had worked in a shirt factory at Martins Ferry before his trial and conviction.

The boy-slayer, who admitted police said, that he participated in the murder of the farmer, had two extreme moods during the brief talk with the writer.

Several times during the interview he supposed he would have to stay in the penitentiary for the rest of his life because he "ain't got no friends." He was obviously bewildered at his predicament. It seemed he could not realize his fate—that it was all a bad dream.

At other times he was confident and hopeful that he would be paroled in a few years as a reward for good behavior.

"I'm going to behave myself as well as I can so that I will be eligible for parole in ten years," he said.

He puzzled for a moment and then grinned boyishly and nearly shouted, "I'd be 27 then—gee, I'd be a man."

Kuhen is confined to a cell with four veteran time-servers, who accentuate his youthfulness. He is the youngest prisoner in the penitentiary at present and is one of the youngest boys ever sentenced to life for murder in the state.

Woman Flyer Lost On
Flight From Havana,
Cuba

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 29.—A sharp vigil was maintained by airplanes flying between Miami and Cuba today for some trace of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, who has been missing since she took off from Havana for Miami early yesterday morning on a flight to Pittsburgh.

The Pan-American Airways, Inc., announced this morning that no trace of Mrs. Keith-Miller had been found since she took off from Havana. The company's planes scouted the Florida keys yesterday afternoon but reported that their search was without result.

A checkup of other points in Florida also revealed no trace of Mrs. Keith-Miller. However, there was a remote possibility that she had landed at some out of the way point far out of her course, since she was down at Charleston, S. C., a week ago on a flight to Miami without revealing her identity, while an exhaustive search was instituted for her.

Airport officials here expressed the belief that the plane through the lack of a drift indicator, was blown off its course into the Gulf of Mexico. Three planes searched that area but up until 10 o'clock this morning they had not reported sighting Mrs. Keith-Miller's plane.

Since Mrs. Keith-Miller's supply of gasoline could not possibly have lasted beyond 3 p. m. yesterday, it was regarded as certain that her plane was down.

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 28.—Recently sentenced to Ohio Penitentiary for bank robbery, Floyd Hebenstreit, Cincinnati, today was under indictment charging him with the robbery of the national bank at Loveland, near here, last summer. Hebenstreit recently was given a 25-year sentence in the state prison for holding up a bank at Reading.

CONGRESSIONAL DRYS PLAN TO ATTACK ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Some congressional drys, regarding prohibition enforcement as a failure and believing this to be the greatest argument of the wets, are planning to attack the federal prohibition enforcement regime in the coming session.

This became evident today when two nominal drys of the house, Rep. Cooper (R), of Wisconsin, 80-year-old dean of the house, and Rep. Howard (D), of Nebraska, assailed present enforcement conditions.

Cooper described the situation as "intolerable" while Howard declared "there has been no such thing as honest enforcement of the law."

The new justice department enforcement regime, created last year when congress transferred prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the attorney-general's office, is expected to be given scrupulous attention early in the session when the justice department appropriation bill is considered in the house.

The bill carrying some $17,000,000 for enforcement will include a $2,000,000 increase for 500 additional agents.

INSANE WOMAN ENDS LIFE AFTER MURDER EARLY ON SATURDAY

Monroe Woman Home
For Holidays; Shot
Man In Sleep

MONROE, O., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Grace Bonnell, 55, a patient at Longview Hospital, Cincinnati, who was on a leave of absence over the Thanksgiving holiday, shot and killed her husband, Louis Bonnell, 60, postmaster of Monroe, and then committed suicide at their home here today.

The double tragedy was discovered by William Bonnell, brother of the slain postmaster, who went to the home when the postoffice failed to open this morning.

Police said they found that the woman had been awake all night and had gone to her husband's room just before day break after securing a revolver from a dresser drawer.

Evidence showed, authorities said, that the woman awakened Bonnell and talked with him for some time. After the man had gone back to sleep, the woman shot him three or four times and then shot herself through the head twice.

Both were killed instantly, an examination revealed.

Authorities said the woman had not been considered dangerously insane but that she had been mentally ill for several years and had become despondent.

She recently told members of the family that she wished she could "end it all."

Mrs. Bonnell had been confined to the Longview sanitarium at Cincinnati. She was apparently well when she returned home Thanksgiving Day, relatives said.

The slain postmaster's brother, told police that when the postoffice was not opened, he went to the Bonnell home and as he reached the porch, he heard two shots. He said he found Mrs. Bonnell lying on the floor of a downstairs room in a pool of blood. Bonnell's body was found in his bed.

TWO LOST SHIPS REACH SAFETY

DETROIT, Nov. 29.—Two ships believed lost with their crews in the gales that have been lashing the great lakes were safe in port today.

The Lake Simcoe, bound for Port Colborne, Ont., without a cargo, arrived in Cleveland this morning, twenty-four hours overdue. The crew of twenty-two men attributed the delay to strong headwinds which the ship encountered yesterday.

While the Lake Simcoe was docking the Maplebay, a Tree Line Navigation Co. grain carrier, missing in Lake Superior for two days, appeared at Sault Ste. Marie. Her master, Captain Richard Graham, said the freighter had taken shelter in the lee of Keweenaw Point.

LABOR SECRETARY

WILLIAM N. DOAK

LABOR FEDERATION WILL OPPOSE DOAK; NAMED LABOR CHIEF

Opposition Hastens
Hoover Selection To
Succeed Davis

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Despite the opposition of the American Federation of Labor, indications on Capitol Hill today were that William N. Doak of Virginia, would be confirmed as secretary of labor, succeeding James J. Davis, senator-elect from Pennsylvania.

President Hoover, however, by nominating the legislative agent of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for the cabinet post, may well have engendered a political split with President William Green of the American Federation of Labor—possibly, even, the entire organization. Political commentators are interested in knowing what effect, if any, a break with the federation would have on his chances in 1932. Opponents of Doak to block his confirmation, would have to get the support of the senate insurgents, such as Norris and LaFollette, and these senators have long enjoyed the support of the brotherhoods. In 1924, the brotherhoods went on record in favor of the independent presidential candidacy of the elder LaFollette. Their newspaper, "Labor," has been a consistent supporter of the senate insurgent bloc too, has been "Railroad Trainmen," the brotherhood paper, which Doak edits.

In addition, it is understood that Senators Glass and Swanson of Virginia, approve of Doak, thus assuring him some Democratic support with that of the "regulars." Green's resignation in leaving the White House and announcing that while he held Doak "in high personal esteem," the A. F. of L. would oppose any man from outside its ranks, forced President Hoover's hand in announcing the appointment of Doak, it was learned. He had intended to withhold the announcement until Davis' resignation became effective, but when advised of Green's attitude, he determined to make it at his first meeting with the newspaper men since the labor president had spoken.

"I have the highest respect for Mr. Green and the American Federation of Labor," he said, "but Mr. Green's enunciation that appointments must come from organization, in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointments to public office."

Mr. Hoover, it was said, felt the labor chief virtually had come into his office and sought to hold a gun against his head. Any waverings he might have had about filling the post—for he had told Green no final decision had been made—disappeared upon being apprised of Green's statement.

The President long has wanted to appoint Doak as his labor aide. When he was forming his original cabinet, he approached the Virginian, but the opposition of the A. F. of L. at that time caused him to temporize while he undertook to conciliate the differences within the ranks of organized labor.

DOG TRACK KENNELS DESTROYED BY FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—Efforts were made here today to determine the origin of a fire which razed the kennels of the Columbus Whippet Racing Club last night, resulting in serious burns to one dog valued at $1,500 and threatening the lives of 64 others.

Lack of water in the vicinity of the kennels hampered firemen in bringing the blaze under control before it had swept the structures. The dogs were freed from the kennels by A. E. Bland, owner. One dog, Quimby, value at $1,500, was seriously burned while making his way out of the blazing structure.

Damage caused by the fire was estimated at approximately $12,000. The kennels will be rebuilt, it was said.

Members of the Greene County board of elections, are among several election boards in the state which may be called before Secretary of State Clarence J. Earl Short, clerk of the local board of elections, said Saturday that the only discrepancy in Greene County's tabulation, was an error made in one precinct in checking the official with the unofficial vote. This error, which was made in the official tally which was sent to the secretary of state, was discovered by the local board when it made a re-

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 29.—Louis A. Olivero, former city detective, at present a deputy sheriff and chief jailer at the county jail, was shot and killed today as he left his home enroute to the jail.

SOLONS HURT WHEN TRUCK HITS AUTO

WARREN, O., Nov. 29.—State Senator Cass J. Jankowski and Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, both of Detroit, were reported in a serious condition at City Hospital here today from injuries they sustained in an auto accident near Milton Lake, west of here, late yesterday.

Senator Jankowski suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, hospital attaches reported. Little hope was held for his recovery, physicians stated.

Congressman McLeod received severe cuts on the head and numerous body bruises, it was said. James F. Sloan, Detroit, former secretary to Congressman McLeod, and a passenger in the car in which the two law-makers were riding, sustained a minor injury to his right arm.

The three were driving from Detroit to Washington for the opening of congress Monday, when the accident occurred. Their machine was said to have collided with a truck loaded with lumber.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Sinclair Lewis, scheduled to sail today for Sweden to receive the Nobel literature prize, refused to comment on the luncheon address yesterday in Philadelphia of the Rev. Lewis said the professor's statement did not call for any comment from him.

Van Dyke said Lewis' novels did not represent the best in American writers. He attacked, also, the American school of "scoffing" writers.

By FRANK FRIES JR.,
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—"I'm going to try to behave myself as well as I can."

A small, dark-complexioned youth with large, almost black eyes that looked searching, yet strangely bewildered, into the eyes of the reporter interviewing him, was speaking through a wire screen in the visitors' room at Ohio penitentiary here.

The screen threw odd shadows on his dark, gray suit and his already palling face.

Louis Kuhen, Jr., 17-year-old boy slayer, who began a life sentence in the state prison ten days ago for the murder of James Wheeler, Belmont County produce farmer, needed little encouragement to talk about himself.

The youthful convicted slayer was sentenced to "hard labor." He has been assigned to a job in the shirt factory at the prison "sewing shirts." Kuhen said that he had worked in a shirt factory at Martins Ferry before his trial and conviction.

The boy-slayer, who admitted police said, that he participated in the murder of the farmer, had two extreme moods during the brief talk with the writer.

Several times during the interview he supposed he would have to stay in the penitentiary for the rest of his life because he "ain't got no friends." He was obviously bewildered at his predicament. It seemed he could not realize his fate—that it was all a bad dream.

At other times he was confident and hopeful that he would be paroled in a few years as a reward for good behavior.

"I'm going to behave myself as well as I can so that I will be eligible for parole in ten years," he said.

He puzzled for a moment and then grinned boyishly and nearly shouted, "I'd be 27 then—gee, I'd be a man."

Kuhen is confined to a cell with four veteran time-servers, who accentuate his youthfulness. He is the youngest prisoner in the penitentiary at present and is one of the youngest boys ever sentenced to life for murder in the state.

DIES FROM LAUGH

Because he laughed at an order by bandits to "stick 'em up," during the hold-up of a Chicago roadhouse, Edwin R. Thompson, above, wealthy Evanston, Ill. broker, is dead. One of the bandits fired a shotgun at Thompson as he laughed.

FEDERAL RESERVE MEMBER IS CALLED

He was stricken in his office in the treasury building late yesterday and died twenty minutes later from a heart attack. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. He was born December 14, 1869, at Burlington, Wis.

BELIEVE MRS. KEITH-MILLER HAS PERISHED

Woman Flyer Lost On
Flight From Havana,
Cuba

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 29.—A sharp vigil was maintained by airplanes flying between Miami and Cuba today for some trace of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, who has been missing since she took off from Havana for Miami early yesterday morning on a flight to Pittsburgh.

The Pan-American Airways, Inc., announced this morning that no trace of Mrs. Keith-Miller had been found since she took off from Havana. Four company's planes scouted the Florida keys yesterday afternoon but reported that their search was without result.

A checkup of other points in Florida also revealed no trace of Mrs. Keith-Miller. However, there was a remote possibility that she had landed at some out of the way point far out of her course, since she was down at Charleston, S. C., a week ago on a flight to Miami without revealing her identity, while an exhaustive search was instituted for her.

Airport officials here expressed the belief that the plane through the lack of a drift indicator, was blown off its course into the Gulf of Mexico. Three planes searched that area but until 10 o'clock this morning they had not reported sighting Mrs. Keith-Miller's plane.

Since Mrs. Keith-Miller's supply of gasoline could not possibly have lasted beyond 3 p. m. yesterday, it was regarded as certain that her plane was down.

INDICT CONVICT

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 28.—Recently sentenced to Ohio Penitentiary for bank robbery, Floyd Hebenstreit, Cincinnati, today was under indictment charging him with the robbery of the national bank at Loveland, near here, last summer. Hebenstreit recently was given a 25-year sentence in the state prison for holding up a bank at Reading.

CONGRESSIONAL DRYS PLAN TO - ATTACK ENFOR EMENT OF LAW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Some congressional drys, regarding prohibition enforcement as a failure and believing this to be the greatest argument of the wets, are planning to attack the federal prohibition enforcement regime in the coming session.

This became evident today when two nominal drys of the house, Rep. Cooper (R), of Wisconsin, 80-year-old dean of the house, and Rep. Howard (D), of Nebraska, assailed present enforcement conditions.

Cooper described the situation as "intolerable" while Howard declared "there has been no such thing as honest enforcement of the law."

The new justice department enforcement regime, created last year when congress transferred prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the attorney-general's office, is expected to be given scrupulous attention early in the session when the justice department appropriation bill is considered in the house.

INSANE WOMAN ENDS LIFE AFTER MURDER EARLY ON SATURDAY

Monroe Woman Home
For Holidays; Shot
Man In Sleep

MONROE, O., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Grace Bonnell, 55, a patient at Longview Hospital, Cincinnati, who was on a leave of absence over the Thanksgiving holiday, shot and killed her husband, Louis Bonnell, 60, postmaster of Monroe, and then committed suicide at their home here today.

The double tragedy was discovered by William Bonnell, brother of the slain postmaster, who went to the home when the postoffice failed to open this morning.

Police said they found that the woman had been awake all night and had gone to her husband's room just before day break after securing a revolver from a dresser drawer.

Evidence showed, authorities said, that the woman awakened Bonnell and talked with him for some time. After the man had gone back to sleep, the woman shot him three or four times and then shot herself through the head twice.

Both were killed instantly, an examination revealed. Authorities said the woman had not been considered dangerously insane but that she had been mentally ill for several years and had become despondent.

She recently told members of the family that she wished she could "end it all."

Mrs. Bonnell had been confined to the Longview sanitarium at Cincinnati. She was apparently well when she returned home Thanksgiving Day, relatives said.

The slain postmaster's brother, told police that when the postoffice was not opened, he went to the Bonnell home and as he reached the porch, he heard two shots. He said he found Mrs. Bonnell lying on the floor of a downstairs room in a pool of blood. Bonnell's body was found in his bed.

TWO LOST SHIPS REACH SAFETY

DETROIT, Nov. 29.—Two ships believed lost with their crews in the gales that have been lashing the great lakes were safe in port today.

The Lake Simcoe, bound for Port Colborne, Ont., without a cargo, arrived in Cleveland this morning, twenty-four hours overdue. The crew of twenty-two men attributed the delay to strong headwinds which the ship encountered yesterday.

While the Lake Simcoe was docking the Maplebay, a Tree Line Navigation Co. grain carrier, missing in Lake Superior for two days, appeared at Sault Ste. Marie. Her master, Captain Richard Graham, said the freighter had taken shelter in the lee of Keweenaw Point.

SENTENCE AUTO THIEF

MARYSVILLE, O., Nov. 29.—Jack Duff, 29, of Marietta, was taken to the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus today to begin serving a term of from one to twenty years for auto stealing.

TREASUR YBALANCE

LABOR SECRETARY

WILLIAM N. DOAK

LABOR FEDERATION WILL OPPOSE DOAK; NAMED LABOR CHIEF

Opposition Hastens
Hoover Selection To
Succeed Davis

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Despite the opposition of the American Federation of Labor, indications on Capitol Hill today were that William N. Doak of Virginia, would be confirmed as secretary of labor, succeeding James J. Davis, senator-elect from Pennsylvania.

President Hoover, however, by nominating the legislative agent of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for the cabinet post, may well have engendered a political split with President William Green of the American Federation of Labor—possibly, even, the entire organization. Political commentators are interested in knowing what effect, if any, a break with the federation would have on his chances in 1932.

Opponents of Doak, to block his confirmation, would have to get the support of the senate insurgents, such as Norris and LaFollette, and these senators have long enjoyed the support of the brotherhoods. In 1924, the brotherhoods went on record in favor of the independent presidential candidacy of the elder LaFollette. Their newspaper, "Labor," has been a consistent supporter of the senate insurgent bloc. So, too, has been "Railroad Trainmen," the brotherhood paper, which Doak edits.

In addition, it is understood that Senators Glass and Swanson of Virginia, approve of Doak, thus assuring him some Democratic support with that of the "regulars."

Green's recent action in leaving the White House and announcing that while he held Doak "in high personal esteem," the A. F. of L. would oppose any man from outside its ranks, forced President Hoover's hand in announcing the appointment of Doak. It was learned. He had intended to withhold the announcement until Davis' resignation became effective, but when advised of Green's attitude, he determined to make it at his first meeting with the newspaper men since the labor president had spoken.

"I have the highest respect for Mr. Green and the American Federation of Labor," he said, "but Mr. Green's enunciation that appointments must come from one organization, in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointments to public office."

Mr. Hoover, it was said, felt the labor chief virtually had come into his office and sought to hold a gun against his head. Any wavering he might have had about filling the post—for he had told Green no final decision had been made—disappeared upon being apprised of Green's statement.

The President long has wanted to appoint Doak as his labor aide. When he was forming his original cabinet, he approached the Virginia, but at the opposition of the A. F. of L. at that time caused him to temporize while he undertook to conciliate the differences within the ranks of organized labor.

DOG TRACK KENNELS DESTROYED BY FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—Efforts were made here today to determine the origin of a fire which razed the kennels of the Columbus Whippet Racing Club last night resulting in serious burns to one dog valued at $1,500 and threatening the lives of 64 others.

Lack of water in the vicinity of the kennels hampered firemen in bringing the blaze under control before it had swept the structures. The dogs were freed from the kennels by A. E. Bland, owner. One dog, Quimby, value at $1,500, was seriously burned while making his way out of the blazing structure.

Damage caused by the fire was estimated at approximately $12,000. The kennels will be rebuilt, it was said.

BOARD MEMBERS TO BE CALLED BECAUSE OF NARROW CONTEST

Recheck Demanded By Brown, Opposed By Pickrel

Members of the Greene County board of elections, are among several election boards in the state which may be called before Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to explain errors made in the tabulation of votes in the race for lieutenant governor last November 4, according to a news dispatch from Columbus.

Earl Short, clerk of the local board of elections, said Saturday that the only discrepancy in Greene County's tabulation, was an error made in one precinct in checking the official with the unofficial vote. This error, which was made in the official tally which was sent to the secretary of state, was discovered by the local board when it made a re-

JAILER SLAIN BY GANGSTERS

Former Detective Is Shot-
Gun Victim

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 29.—Louis A. Olivero, former city detective, at present a deputy sheriff and chief jailer at the county jail, was shot and killed today as he left his home enroute to the jail.

Five boys, who witnessed the crime, said a sedan drove slowly past Olivero and one of the occupants fired at him. Olivero received the full charge of a saved-off shotgun.

Olivero, who was said to have the largest working knowledge of Italian gangsters in the city, received many death threats during his official career and had escaped several previous traps.

It was the fifth murder in Kansas City this week.

SOLONS HURT WHEN TRUCK HITS AUTO

WARREN, O., Nov. 29.—State Senator Cass J. Jankowski and Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, both of Detroit, were reported in a serious condition at City Hospital here today from injuries they sustained in an auto accident near Milton Lake, west of here, late yesterday.

Senator Jankowski suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, hospital attaches reported. Little hope was held for his recovery, physicians stated.

Congressman McLeod received severe cuts on the head and numerous body bruises, it was said.

James F. Sloan, Detroit, former secretary to Congressman McLeod, and a passenger in the car in which the two lawmakers were riding, sustained a minor injury to his right arm.

The three were driving from Detroit to Washington for the opening of congress Monday, when the accident occurred. Their machine was said to have collided with a truck loaded with lumber.

LEWIS REFUSES TO ANSWER VAN DYKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Sinclair Lewis, scheduled to sail today for Sweden to receive the Nobel literature prize, refused to comment on the luncheon address yesterday in Philadelphia of the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Princeton professor and author. Van Dyke said that the award to Lewis was an "insult" to America.

Lewis said the professor's statement did not call for any comment from him.

Van Dyke said Lewis' novels did not represent the best in American writers. He attacked, also, the American school of "scuffing" writers.

"GHOST TOWN" MAY STAGE COMEBACK

CENTRAL CITY, Colo., Nov. 29.—This quiet little "ghost city," once the largest town of Colorado territory, promises to stage a comeback as a mining center as the result of a "strike" recently made near here.

An ore body of very large proportions, running from $40 to $60 per ton in gold, silver and copper, has been opened by Denver mining men on the 800-foot level of ground on Quartz hill, half mile south of the town.

The strike is regarded by Colorado mining engineers as the largest for that quality of ore made in this old mining district since early days.

A reduction in freight rates on ore from Clear creek and Gilpin counties recently granted by the Colorado and Southern railroad is regarded as a boon to mining in this district. The rates are the lowest in the history of this state.

Ore is being shipped to a flotation plant in Colorado Springs.

UNIVERSITY PLANT REFINES RADIUM

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 29.—The University of Missouri has the only laboratory in the nation in which radium is being refined from the paint salvaged from luminous dials of discarded watches and clocks.
The work is conducted by Dr. Herman Schlundt, radium authority, and by Dr. G. F. Brockbridge, assistant professor of chemistry. Watch dial paint now is being shipped to the state university refining laboratory in large quantities. On each dial there is about ten or fifteen cents worth of radium, which is present in quantities of one hundredth part of an ounce to several hundred pounds of paint. By the process used, more than ninety-five per cent of the radium is recovered.

An ore body of very large proportions, running from $40 to $60 per ton in gold, silver and copper, has been opened by Denver mining men on the 800-foot level of ground on Quartz hill, half mile south of the town.

The strike is regarded by Colorado mining engineers as the largest for that quality of ore made in this old mining district since early days.

A reduction in freight rates on ore from Clear creek and Gilpin counties recently granted by the Colorado and Southern railroad is regarded as a boon to mining in this district. The rates are the lowest in the history of this state.

Ore is being shipped to a flotation plant in Colorado Springs.

UNIVERSITY PLANT REFINES RADIUM

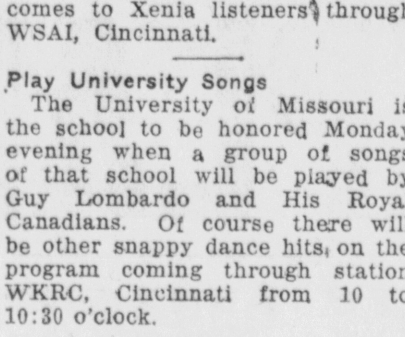

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 29.—The University of Missouri has the only laboratory in the nation in which radium is being refined from the paint salvaged from luminous dials of discarded watches and clocks.

The work is conducted by Dr. Herman Schlundt, radium authority, and by Dr. G. F. Breckenridge, assistant professor of chemistry.

Watch dial paint now is being shipped to the state university refining laboratory in large quantities. On each dial there is about ten or fifteen cents worth of radium, which is present in quantities of one hundredth part of an ounce to several hundred pounds of paint. By the process used, more than ninety-five per cent of the radium is recovered.

SKATING TIME HERE

ICE skating on the lagoon in Shawnee Park was authorized Saturday.

Foody Post, American Legion, which will supervise the skating there this winter, has announced that the ice is sufficiently safe.

Tests made Friday indicated there are about six inches of ice on the lagoon, which guarantees the safety of skaters. The post will supervise the skating at all times to eliminate danger.

TWO ORDINANCES TO FIX CONTRACTS ARE ACCEPTED BY CITY

Two ordinances, one renewing, the other making a minor contract for use of electricity by the city, with the Dayton Power and Light Co., were placed on their second reading and passed by the city commission Friday night. The regular meeting date was postponed one day owing to the Thanksgiving holiday.

The existing contract for street lighting was renewed for a year in one ordinance, with privilege of cancellation by either party after giving thirty days notice. This ordinance is for the purpose of legalizing payment of street lighting bills, and will not affect any future contract for use of electricity that may be entered into by the city.

By the other ordinance the city contracted for use of electricity in lighting traffic signals at street intersections, no contract for this service heretofore existed.

The ordinance designed to regulate the price of electricity for that purpose, was introduced at the request of the Dayton Power and Light Co., at the last meeting of commission two weeks ago. It authorizes City Manager M. C. Smith to contract for the service on the following basis:

For each four way traffic signal of eight 50-watt lamps with not more than four lamps burning at a time, and operated not more than eighteen hours a day, the city will pay $60 a year.

For each four way signal of twelve 50-watt lamps with not more than four lamps burning at one time and operated twenty-four hours a day, the city will pay $70 a year. The utility guarantees a voltage of 115 for the operation of the signals.

The municipal budget for next year, submitted by City Manager Smith two weeks ago was also given its second reading and passed.

MISSING AVIATRIX FORCED DOWN HERE

Mrs. Keith Miller, Australian aviatrix, who is believed to have lost her life while flying from Havana to Miami, Fla., Friday made a forced landing on the premises of Ralph Horney, Upper Bellbrook Pike near Xenia, a year ago last summer.

Mrs. Miller was on the last leg of her flight to Cleveland in the women's transcontinental air derby at the time, and her plane got out of its course, while flying toward Columbus from Lanken airfield, Cincinnati. Mrs. Miller came down on the Honey field late one Sunday afternoon when she had trouble with her ship. She remained in a Xenia hotel all night, and mechanics came from Columbus and repaired her ship so that she was able to take off early Monday morning.

SHERIFF SELLS TWO FARMS SATURDAY

Two farms about five miles north of Xenia were sold Saturday morning by Sheriff Ohmer Tate in foreclosure proceedings in the case of The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., against Bennett Myers.

One farm of 129 acres at the intersection of the Stevenson Road and Brush Road was bought by James Jacoby for $77 an acre. This property formerly belonged to the Robert Stevenson estate and was known as the Stevenson farm.

The other farm of 183 acres in the same neighborhood was bid in by E. S. Foust for $86 an acre for a buyer whose name was not disclosed. Both farms were appraised at $105 an acre and brought more than two-thirds of the appraisement.

HUGE GERMAN PLANE DAMAGED BY BLAZE

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The giant German flying boat DO-X, the world's largest and most luxurious heavier-than-air craft, was badly damaged by fire at its anchorage in the Tagus River at Lisbon today.

The wing of the huge air liner was burned before the blaze was extinguished, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Lisbon stated.

Members of the crew worked heroically to extinguish the fire to prevent the entire craft, built at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars and capable of carrying 150 persons, from being destroyed.

Prompt work on the part of the crew is believed to have saved the giant air liner from complete destruction.

The ship was to have left Lisbon today for Cadiz to have its twelve motors inspected.

Commander Friedrich Christiansen and the entire crew were aboard the DO-X when the fire broke out. There was no passengers aboard.

The blaze was discovered at 2 p. m. (9 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth, the Spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.—1 John, v, 7, 8.

MARKET FOR MODERN PRODUCE

The problem of the low prices the farmers are getting for wheat and other staples will be a big one for the new congress, and is likely to constitute a principal issue at the 1932 election. Many farmers are in distress, but modern science will provide the way out for them.

Agriculture has been greatly changed by scientific methods and use of machinery during the past 10 years. The farmers have largely increased their production, so that frequently they produce much more than can be sold at a profit. They often ask what is the use of thus increasing production, if it simply creates a vast unsalable surplus?

The country, however, will never go back to antiquated methods of farming, any more than it will go back to hand work in the factories. If the farmer increases his production per acre, he may be able to make a profit on lower prices.

What is likely to happen as soon as business reaches a high point again, is that many farmers who do business efficiently will be in the market for all kinds of improvements. They have largely bought automobiles and radios, they will want still more of them, they will want electric lights and power, modern plumbing, better water supplies, electric labor saving devices in the homes, and so on.

All these demands make business for the tradesmen in the nearest market towns. For the past 10 years many young men have been leaving the farms to work at supplying these needs. They do not need to go to the large cities. They can move into the nearest town center and supply the surrounding country with modern improvements and services. There is a wonderful field for selling modern stuff to the farms, and the more the farmers of Ohio use the modern methods, the more they can buy this modern stuff.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

It is remarked that the public is a good deal excited about the forthcoming report of President Hoover's law enforcement commission on prohibition. But that when this commission reports on prohibition, public interest will lapse as to the main task of this board, which is to study the methods by which crime can be held down and respect for law created. This underlying problem is greater even than prohibition.

The country must not lose sight of this basic question. Our whole democratic system is founded on the idea that if the people have the right to make their own laws, they will obey them. Now if a large part of the people refuse to obey the laws, if gangs of outlaws terrorize the cities, what becomes of democratic government?

When this commission reports on this main problem of law and crime, its report should not be allowed to gather dust in libraries without action, as commission reports frequently do.

DRIFT TO BIG CITIES

While country towns remain somewhere near stationary in population and many of them lost in the 1930 census, the larger cities are growing fast. Millions of people are herding into these overgrown places where living costs are high, where homes are expensive, and many people live under unhealthy conditions.

One thing that will check this drift will be the feeling of industrial corporations, that they can operate less expensively in smaller places, where land costs less, and where living costs for the workers are not so high. It seems an unnatural development, when millions of people crowd together under uncomfortable conditions, when our vast open spaces permit healthful life and inexpensive development.

Apparently India is changing, when Mohammedans and Hindus bury the hatchet and Brahmins offer political equality to "untouchables." Strange bedfellows have emerged from the desire of India to govern itself.

As long as the chrysanthemums last there is compensation for the approach of winter and cold weather.

Are not Uncle Sam's efforts to stabilize the wheat gamble likely to lead someone to ask why the old gentleman did not step in a year ago and stabilize the stock gamble?

TRADE LAST FOR RADIO ANNOUNCERS

Seems to me it's about time someone said a good word for Radio Announcers.

I don't hear anybody saying that word, nobody's nominated me for the job, but I'm more than eager to step into the breach and give them a Trade Last. And they don't need to trade back if they don't want to.

When I say Radio Announcers, I mean the Professionals. I don't mean the entertainers, the pinch hitters, the amateurs, the occasionals. I mean those young fellows who are on the job all day long, day in and day out, "from dawn till dewy eve" and up to midnight. The lads who tell you the time, advertise jewelry and powdered soap introduce sopranos and banjo players, and tell you what the violinist is playing next and why he's playing it and what the composer is trying to say.

I like those fellows. Who can help liking them? They do their stuff so well, so efficiently, without pretense or bunk. They sound Regular, they work manfully at their jobs. . . . They have good voices or they wouldn't be Radio Announcers, but they know how to use those voices. They speak clearly, strongly, smoothly—and they speak the English language as it should be spoken. They've studied, you can see. And THEY DON'T USE SLANG.

I don't mind slang. In fact, I like it. When it's new, it's full of color and interest, but it doesn't Stand Up. Those Radio Boys have sense enough to keep away from the wise-cracks and Flip Phrases. They don't English, and remind me—and a lot of other people, too—that the first of us do NOT talk English. When I hear a capable Radio Announcer on the job, I'm always reminded that I drop my g's—and say "gonna" more often than I say "going to"—and say "dida" instead of "did you"—and I stop my way through the language of our fathers. I know better, but I don't do better. I take the easiest way, but these Radio Announcers take the hardest way and make it seem easy.

They deserve a few kind words—and there they are! And I wish I knew as much about my job as they know about theirs.

How does the population of New York state compare with that of the Dominion of Canada?

The population of New York state, as given in the 1930 census is 12,619,503. That of the Dominion of Canada, according to the last census taken, in 1921, is 8,788,483. It is reasonable to assume an increase in this latter figure of from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000, as this has been the approximate average increase in other periods of the same length.

FAR, FAR AWAY

NEW YORK.—They have collected in a volume called "Camera Obscura" some pieces that pore o' Bill Bolitho scribbled for the New York Morning World before Death smashed his typewriter. . . . Bill Bolitho, whose belief was that life is miraculous, breathless and good to live—"orderly only because it has such preposterous ups and downs."

Sitting in the little breakfast nook of the studio, two by four, standardized, strewn with mechanical gimcracks, electric toasters and things, the talk was of life and love, the grandeur that was Greece and the glory that was Rome and the stupidity that is New York.

Beyond the square-paneled curtained casement the town sparkled in the sunny, windy, Autumn morning.

"You know," said my companion, "if I had my heart's desire right now, I'd be at the helm of a tricky little schooner, sailin' leagues to leeward of a coast I'd lost the chart of, overseas. . . . And here I am, peeping out at a bar of sunlight across Gramercy Park from behind curtains of Swiss muslin."

"Dotted Swiss muslin," said I. . . . And then, the talk drifted again to Bill Bolitho's book—poor Bill Bolitho, dead and gone—the man whose belief was that life is miraculous, breathless and good to live.

JOURNEY'S END!

BANK CLOSINGS SEEN AS STORM FORERUNNER OVER REMEDIAL LAWS

—CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Closing of banks in various regions is certain to bring on a storm when congress meets. Attacks and counter attacks over remedial legislation are certain to occur.

Of the need of remedial legislation there is little doubt. John W. Pole, comptroller of the currency, in a statement at last session's congressional investigation into the need for remedial banking legislation, said:

"A comprehensive study of the banking system for the past nine years clearly indicates that the system of banking in rural communities has broken down through causes beyond the control of the individual banker or the local community—causes of a basic nature having many ramifications throughout the great economic changes which have occurred in the United States since 1914."

Comptroller Pole's reference to causes beyond the individual banker's control can be interpreted in two ways—and will be thus conflictingly interpreted by diverging groups in the senate and house banking and currency committees as soon as their deliberations begin, with the assembling of congress for the winter.

One interpretation is that such changes were inevitable from the growth of business and must be met by facilitating larger concentrations of capital to which end bills already are under preparation legalizing branch banking on a scale not permitted by existing regulations.

The alternative version is that large financiers have been effecting their own concentration and, finding themselves hampered by a multiplicity of small local institutions, have deliberately been extinguishing many of them and thus clearing the ground for a few vast banking chains in which the lesser links, however, are to be called branches, inasmuch as chain is an unpopular term.

Whether or not any intentional pressure has been exercised to terminate the activities of small banks, the mortality rate among them has been high. Pole's records showing failures of 4,877 state and 763 national institutions, involving $1,721,000,000 in deposits during the nine-year period which ended last December 31.

Of these failures a great proportion for some time were in the northwestern corn and wheat area until the average of surviving banks in that territory had dwindled to

blazons the intelligence that "All Are Invited—All Are Welcome."

One night last week, it was cold and drizzling and the handy man about the improvised temple was setting things to rights for the evening exercises of song and prayer. The door stood ajar. A bar of light glistered across the black wet pavement.

Out of the darkness and into the light slung a cat, a poor, bedraggled, frightened animal chained by destiny forever to traverse The Edge of Things.

"All Are Invited—All Are Welcome"—that's what the sign in the window read and into the improvised temple stepped the cat.

An instant later it was out again, lost in the shadows and the door of the improvised temple was slammed.

Why not? A stray cat isn't important.

not much in excess of one per cent, which is the minimum limit that critics of the supposed consolidation campaign believe the consolidators had set. Anyway, failures in the section where previously they were most frequent virtually have ceased now—perhaps because only strong banks have been able to survive, perhaps because it is deemed the field has been sufficiently thinned.

It is pointed out, however, that a considerable clutter of small banks remained in Kentucky, Tennessee, southern Indiana and parts of Missouri and North Carolina, where the epidemic has struck recently.

As suspicious observers argue, the moment is opportune—the prolongation of commercial depression and effects of the drought making the latest bankruptcies seem natural, election being over and the maximum interval being allowed before the next one.

According to this theory, it simply is the turn of the newly stricken regions to be weeded of their troublesome little banks.

The example also will be conveniently available to refer to when the demand is made for a broadening of the branch banking laws in order to prevent similar future collapses, which, while of small caliber individually, are serious in the aggregate.

As for the necessary excuse to close the desired number of bank doors, complainants against the methods which it is charged have been employed contend that a state or national examiner, by adopting a sufficiently rigorous attitude toward all collateral, can, without an actual appearance of injustice, force almost any except the most powerfully backed institution to suspend.

None of the more influential members of the congressional banking and currency committees are yet in Washington, but their offices on Capitol Hill already have begun hearing from them, foreshadowing a bitter fight when the lawmakers convene.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

How those ants did fight! If Peter had not seen them with his own eyes he would never have believed that such little creatures had such strength and courage. Watching, the boy noticed that some ants were so much tinier than their sisters that they could not make good use of their mandibles nor reach their opponents' bodies with their poison spray. Why in the world weren't these little soldiers crushed in the struggling mob? Then Peter discovered that the little soldiers were not so much "out of luck," after all. The "pygmies" watched their chance and sprang on the backs of their foes and bit at the heads of the latter, trying their best to tear the bigger ants to pieces. And believe it or not, sometimes they succeeded.

Whether they did as much damage as they wanted to or not, they held their own and not once did Peter see a little soldier stamped upon.

Bitter as the battle was, and fierce the fighting, there was no doubt about it—the Red Ants were the strongest. Closer and closer and closer these pressed toward Black Anthill, and Black Ant after Black Ant gave up the unequal struggle.

Peter had become so fascinated in watching the fighting that he had not once glanced about him. Now, however, he heard what sounded like marching feet, and he gave a glad cry. Around the side of Black Anthill came a troop of soldiers.

"Reinforcements!" cried Peter. "They must have come out of the tunnel I just left. Now my friends may be able to do something!"

But alas and alack for the best laid plans. The Red Ants had thought of the same plan to end the battle. Up from their rear came marching their "shock proof" troops.

Next: "Black Ants Face Defeat."

Eat Liver For Anemia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Requests for information and letters from all parts of the country indicate that the modern treatment for anemia is not well understood. In spite of the splendid and even magical results of this treatment (introduced five years ago), and in spite of the wide publicity that treatment received in the press, many people who have the disease do not know the details of the new treatment.

Since the disease can be nearly always controlled by this method, and in its absence or neglect is progressively degenerating, information about it should be made public frequently.

The key to the problem was discovered by two Boston physicians, Drs. Minot and Murphy. It is simplicity itself. It consists in eating liver.

How much? Two hundred fifty grams of raw, or about half a pound of cooked liver.

How often? Once a day.

For how long? As long as you live.

How long does it take for improvement to begin? About 10 days.

How do you know when you are better? The color of the skin becomes healthy, the lips and tongue get red, strength increases, and appetite, stomach and bowels return to more normal conditions.

"But I don't like liver. In fact, I can't stand it." You are not alone: that tortured cry arose like a chorus right after the treatment came in.

Answer: The active substance of liver can be obtained in the form of "Liver Extract." This is a sort of sandy powder put up in bottles like a medicine. It does not taste like liver, but rather like coarse salt. The dose is 3 to 6 bottles a day.

"Liver extract is too expensive for me."

Answer: There is another substance put up like medicine in bottles called "ventriculin." It is about one-third less expensive than "Liver Extract." It is just as good.

What is ventriculin? It is the powder made from dried stomach lining (mucosa).

Is liver, or "liver extract" or "ventriculin" good for all kinds of anemia? No.

How can you tell whether the anemia a person has is the one they are good for? This will be discussed tomorrow.

Why should liver be good for anemia? This will be discussed tomorrow.

Why should dried stomach be good for anemia? This will be discussed tomorrow.

But even ventriculin is too expensive, and "I can't stand liver. What can I do?"

This will be discussed day after tomorrow.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A new pamphlet, "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," by Dr. Clending, can be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 E. Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlet on "Hygiene of Women" also is available for 10 cents.)

Finance Prevents Controversy

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The money question has wrecked many a marriage. The girl wife may have earned a good salary before marrying, and have had all she earned for her own. This may make her extravagant in her ideas of what she needs for herself, and it will be hard for her to adjust herself to the smaller amount of money she has at her disposal after the wedding.

Or it may be that she has supported her self entirely and efficiently. She goes wholeheartedly into matrimony and housekeeping, doing her own work and working hard at the washing, ironing, baking, marketing, only to find that her husband does not think she is entitled to any money of her own.

If she gets a place to place to sleep and clothes, she should be content in his view. She finds, much to her surprise and dismay, that she works as hard and as efficiently as she did before her marriage, at work that is not as congenial as her former position, but she never has any money of her own, and feels humiliated at having to ask for a little for a show or for a soda.

Having a working agreement before marriage might be a good idea. An extravagant wife who does not know the value of money is a great hardship and handicap to a man; but a husband who speaks of "my money," as if his wife's work was of no value, and who never trusts her with a cent, is a burden no woman should have to bear.

Do you keep your house immaculate and cook good meals? You do no work outside of the home. I take it, from your letter, if that is so, what do you mean by saying you are doing "your share of the work," and your husband's washing and ironing? When a wife does nothing but the housework and there is not too much of that, her share is the washing and ironing—either doing them herself, or seeing that they are done properly—and all the numerous things that make a smoothly running house.

If you are doing all this, you should certainly have something to say about the financial management of the home and have something for yourself. If you are not doing this, start right in doing your job properly, and then demand your rights, and if the nagging continues, you have my permission to leave and work where your efforts will be appreciated.

BABY FACE: Your boy friend is one of those temperamental people one hears so much about. He acts as he feels at the moment regardless of how it affects the person with whom he happens to be. If you think his friendship worth keeping, try to understand the mood in which you happen to find him. If he is quiet, indifferent and pensive, try to be sympathetic and willing to receive his confidence and understand him.

Roll the rice krispies before measuring. Mix all ingredients except whipping cream and one-half cup of the rolled krispies. Whip cream until stiff. Fold the mixture into the whipped cream. Shape into a roll and cover with one-half cup of crushed rice krispies. Line a pan with waxed paper, sprinkle with more of the rolled krispies and place roll on these. Chill four to six hours. It may be kept several days. When ready to serve slice with sharp knife, top with whipped cream sweetened with honey and garnish with a preserved strawberry or cherry. Will serve 10 to 12.

Tired Look Is Fatal To Eye Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

Those chic little shallow-crowned hats now so popular in vogue demand not only that milady's coiffure be perfect, but that her eyes also be perfect. She can't hide her dull, lackluster eyes in the shadow of a hat brim any longer, if she wishes to achieve smartness. Fatigue is one of the greatest destroyers of eye beauty. Tired eyes are never lovely, no matter how glorious their coloring, nor how extraordinary their shape and size. Strain and fatigue make the eyes look old and dull.

Rest is the most effective of eye cosmetics. If your eyes feel strained and dry, wash your hands, rinse them with cold water, and "palm" your eyes with them. ## BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost; and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth, the Spirit, and the water, and the blood; and these three agree in one.—1 John, v, 7, 8.

MARKET FOR MODERN PRODUCE

The problem of the low prices the farmers are getting for wheat and other staples will be a big one for the new congress, and is likely to constitute a principal issue at the 1932 election. Many farmers are in distress, but modern science will provide the way out for them.

Agriculture has been greatly changed by scientific methods and use of machinery during the past 10 years. The farmers have largely increased their production, so that frequently they produce much more than can be sold at a profit. They often ask what is the use of thus increasing production, if it simply creates a vast unsalable surplus?

The country, however, will never go back to antiquated methods of farming, any more than it will go back to hand work in the factories. If the farmer increases his production per acre, he may be able to make a profit on lower prices.

What is likely to happen as soon as business reaches a high point again is that many farmers who do business efficiently will be in the market for all kinds of improvements. They have largely bought automobiles and radios, they will want still more of them, they will want electric lights and power, modern plumbing, better water supplies, electric labor saving devices in the homes, and so on.

All these demands make business for the tradesmen in the nearest market towns. For the past 10 years many young men have been leaving the farms to work at supplying these needs. They do not need to go to the large cities. They can move into the nearest town center and supply the surrounding country with modern improvements and services. There is a wonderful field for selling modern stuff to the farms, and the more the farmers of Ohio use the modern methods, the more they can buy this modern stuff.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

It is remarked that the public is a good deal excited about the forthcoming report of President Hoover's law enforcement commission on prohibition. But that when this commission reports on prohibition, public interest will lapse as to the main task of this board, which is to study the methods by which crime can be held down and respect for law created. This underlying problem is greater even than prohibition.

The country must not lose sight of this basic question. Our whole democratic system is founded on the idea that if the people have the right to make their own laws, they will obey them. Now if a large part of the people refuse to obey the laws, if gangs of outlaws terrorize the cities, what becomes of democratic government?

When this commission reports on this main problem of law and crime, its report should not be allowed to gather dust in libraries without action, as commission reports frequently do.

DRIFT TO BIG CITIES

While country towns remain somewhere near stationary in population and many of them lost in the 1930 census, the larger cities are growing fast. Millions of people are herding into these overgrown places where living costs are high, where homes are expensive, and many people live under unhealthy conditions.

One thing that will check this drift will be the feeling of industrial corporations, that they can operate less expensively in smaller places, where land costs less, and where living costs for the workers are not so high. It seems an unnatural development, when millions of people crowd together under uncomfortable conditions, when our vast open spaces permit healthful life and inexpensive development.

Apparently India is changing, when Mohammedans and Hindus bury the hatchet and Brahmins offer political equality to "untouchables." Strange bedfellows have emerged from the desire of India to govern itself.

As long as the chrysanthemums last there is compensation for the approach of winter and cold weather.

Are not Uncle Sam's efforts to stabilize the wheat gamble likely to lead someone to ask why the old gentleman did not step in a year ago and stabilize the stock gamble?

TRADE LAST FOR RADIO ANNOUNCERS

Seems to me it's about time someone said a good word for Radio Announcers.

I don't hear anybody saying that word, nobody's nominated me for the job, but I'm more than eager to step into the breach and give them a Trade Last. And they don't need to trade back if they don't want to.

When I say Radio Announcers, I mean the Professionals. I don't mean the entertainers, the pinch hitters, the amateurs, the occasionalists. I mean those young fellows who are on the job all day long, day in and day out, "from dawn till dewy eve" and up to midnight. The lads who tell you the time, advertise jewelry and powdered soap introduce sopranos and banjo players, and tell you what the violinist is playing next and why he's playing it and what the composer is trying to say.

I like those fellows. Who can help liking them? They do their stuff so well, so efficiently, without pretense or bunk. They sound Regular, they work manfully at their jobs. . . . They have good voices or they wouldn't be Radio Announcers, but they know how to use those voices. They speak clearly, strongly, smoothly—and they speak the English language as it should be spoken. They've studied, you can see. And THEY DON'T USE SLANG.

I don't mind slang. In fact, I like it. When it's new, it's full of color and interest, but it doesn't Stand Up. Those Radio Boys have sense enough to keep away from the wise-cracks and Flip Phrases. They don't, English, and remind me—and a lot of other people, too—that the rest of us do NOT talk English. When I hear a capable Radio Announcer on the job, I'm always reminded that I drop my g's—and say "gonna" more often than I say "going to"—and say "didja" instead of "did you"—and stop my way through the language of our fathers. I know better, but I don't do better. I take the easiest way, but these Radio Announcers take the hardest way and make it seem easy.

They deserve a few kind words—and there they are! And I wish I knew as much about my job as they know about theirs.

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

How does the population of New York state compare with that of the Dominion of Canada? The population of the New York state, as given in the 1930 census is 12,619,503. That of the Dominion of Canada, according to the last census taken, in 1921, is 8,788,483. It is reasonable to assume an increase in this latter figure of from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000, as this has been the approximate average increase in other periods of the same length.

Sitting in the little breakfast nook of the studio, two by four, standardized, strewn with mechanical gimcracks, electric toasters and things, the talk was of life and love, the grandeur that was Greece and the glory that was Rome and the stupidity that was New York.

Beyond the square-paneled curtained casement the town sparkled in the sunny, windy, Autumn morning.

And here I am, peeping out at a bar of sunlight across Gramercy Park from behind curtains of Swiss muslin."

"Dotted Swiss muslin," said I. . . . And then, the talk drifted again to Bill Bolitho's book—poor Bill Bolitho, dead and gone—the man whose belief was that life is miraculous, breathless and good to live.

BANK CLOSINGS SEEN AS STORM FORERUNNER OVER REMEDIAL LAWS

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Closing of banks in various regions is certain to bring on a storm when congress meets. Attacks and counter attacks over remedial legislation are certain to occur.

Of the need of remedial legislation there is little doubt. John W. Pole, comptroller of the currency, in a statement at last session's congressional investigation into the need for remedial banking legislation, said:

"A comprehensive study of the banking system for the past nine years clearly indicates that the system of banking in rural communities has broken down through causes beyond the control of the individual banker or the local community—causes of a basic nature having many ramifications throughout the great economic changes which have occurred in the United States since 1914."

Comptroller Pole's reference to causes beyond the individual banker's control can be interpreted in two ways—and will be thus conflictingly interpreted by diverging groups in the senate and house banking and currency committees as soon as their deliberations begin, with the assembling of congress for the winter.

One interpretation is that such changes were inevitable from the growth of business and must be met by facilitating larger concentrations of capital to which end bills already are under preparation legalizing branch banking on a scale not permitted by existing regulations.

The alternative version is that large financiers have been effecting their own concentration and, finding themselves hampered by a multiplicity of small local institutions, have deliberately been extinguishing many of them and thus clearing the ground for a few vast banking chains in which the lesser banks, however, are to be called branches, inasmuch as chain is an unpopular term.

Whether or not any intentional pressure has been exercised to terminate the activities of small banks, the mortality rate among them has been high. Pole's records showing failures of 4,877 state and 763 national institutions, involving $1,721,000,000 in deposits during the nine-year period which ended last December 31.

Of these failures a great proportion for some time were in the northwestern corn and wheat area until the average of surviving banks in that territory had dwindled to

blazons the intelligence that "All Are Invited—All Are Welcome."

One night last week, it was cold and drizzling and the handy man about the improvised temple was setting things to rights for the evening exercises of song and prayer. The door stood ajar. A bar of light listened across the black wet pavement.

Out of the darkness and into the light slung a cat, a poor, bedraggled, frightened animal chained by destiny forever to traverse The Edge of Things.

not much in excess of one per cent, which is the minimum limit that critics of the supposed consolidation campaign believe the consolidators had set. Anyway, failures in the section where previously they were most frequent virtually have ceased now—perhaps because only strong banks have been able to survive, perhaps because it is deemed the field has been sufficiently thinned.

It is pointed out, however, that a considerable clutter of small banks remained in Kentucky, Tennessee, southern Indiana and parts of Missouri and North Carolina, where the epidemic has struck recently.

As suspicious observers argue, the moment is opportune—the prolongation of commercial depression and effects of the drought making the latest bankruptcies seem natural, election being over and the maximum interval being allowed before the next one.

According to this theory, it simply is the turn of the newly stricken regions to be weeded of their troublesome little banks.

The example also will be conveniently available to refer to when the demand is made for a broadening of the branch banking laws in order to prevent similar future collapses, which, while of small caliber individually, are serious in the aggregate.

As for the necessary excuse to close the desired number of bank doors, complainants against the methods which it is charged have been employed contend that a state or national examiner, by adopting a sufficiently rigorous attitude toward all collateral, can, without an actual appearance of injustice, force almost any except the most powerfully backed institution to suspend.

None of the more influential members of the congressional banking and currency committees are yet in Washington, but their offices on Capitol Hill already have begun hearing from them, foreshadowing a bitter fight when the lawmakers convene.

Today's Recipes
Cheese Souffle.—Two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, one-half cup milk, one-half cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains of cayenne, yolks of three eggs, whites of two. Melt butter, add flour, stir until well blended; pour on gradually cheese, salt and cayenne. Remove from fire, add well beaten yolks. Cool mixture and cut and fold in well beaten whites of eggs. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes in slow oven. Serve at once. Will serve four.

Date and Nut Squares.—Two eggs, one cup powdered sugar, one-fourth cup bread crumbs, six tablespoons flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup chopped dates, one cup chopped nuts. Beat the eggs and add the powdered sugar and bread crumbs, beating well. Mix and sift the flour and baking powder and add. Stir in the dates and nuts and turn into a buttered shallow pan. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) for about forty-five minutes. Cut into squares with a sharp knife. This will make two dozen squares.

Suggestions
Honey Krisp Roll
One cup rice krispies, one-half cup chopped dates, one-fourth cup chopped nut meats, eight marshmallows cut in pieces, one-fourth cup honey, one-half pint whipping cream, one-half cup rolled rice krispies. Roll the rice krispies before measuring. Mix all ingredients except whipping cream and one-half cup of the rolled krispies. Whip cream until stiff. Fold the mixture into the whipped cream. Shape into a roll and cover with one-half cup of crushed rice krispies. Line a pan with waxed paper, sprinkle with more of the rolled krispies and place roll on these. Chill four to six hours. It may be kept several days. When ready to serve slice with sharp knife, top with whipped cream sweetened with honey and garnish with a preserved strawberry or cherry. Will serve 10 to 12.

"Reinforcements!" cried Peter. "They must have come out of the tunnel I just left. Now my friends may be able to do something!" But alas and alack for the best laid plans. The Red Ants had thought of the same plan to end the battle. Up from their rear came marching their "shock proof" troops.

Eat Liver For Anemia

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Requests for information and letters from all parts of the country indicate that the modern treatment for anemia is not well understood. In spite of the splendid and even magical results of this treatment (introduced five years ago), and in spite of the wide publicity that treatment received in the press, many people who have the disease do not know the details of the new treatment. Since the disease can be nearly always controlled by this method, and in its absence or neglect is progressively degenerating, information about it should be made public frequently.

The key to the problem was discovered by two Boston physicians, Drs. Minot and Murphy. It is simply itself. It consists in eating liver.

How much? Two hundred fifty grams of raw, or about half a pound of cooked liver.

How often? Once a day.

For how long? As long as you live.

How long does it take for improvement to begin? About 10 days.

How do you know when you are better? The color of the skin becomes healthy, the lips and tongue get red, strength increases, and appetite, stomach and bowels return to more normal conditions.

"But I don't like liver. In fact, I can't stand it." You are not alone; that tortured cry arose like a chorus right after the treatment came in.

Answer: The active substance of liver can be obtained in the form of "Liver Extract." This is a sort of sandy powder put up in bottles like a medicine. It does not taste like liver, but rather like coarse salt. The dose is 3 to 6 bottles a day.

"Liver extract is too expensive for me."

Answer: There is another substance put up like medicine in bottles called "Ventriculin." It is about one-third less expensive than "Liver Extract." It is just as good.

What is ventriculin? It is the powder made from dried stomach lining (mucosa).

Is liver, or "liver extract" or "ventriculin" good for all kinds of anemia? No.

How can you tell whether the anemia a person has is the one they are good for? This will be discussed tomorrow.

Why should liver be good for anemia? This will be discussed tomorrow.

Why should dried stomach be good for anemia? This will be discussed tomorrow.

But even ventriculin is too expensive and "I can't stand liver. What can I do?"

This will be discussed day after tomorrow.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A new pamphlet, "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," by Dr. Clending, can be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 E. Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlet on "Hygiene of Women" also is available for 10 cents.

Finance Prevents Controversy

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The money question has wrecked many a marriage. The girl wife may have earned a good salary before marrying, and have had all she earned for her own. This may make her extravagant in her ideas of what she needs for herself, and it will be hard for her to adjust herself to the smaller amount of money she has at her disposal after the wedding.

Or it may be that she has supported her self entirely and efficiently. She goes wholeheartedly into matrimony and housekeeping, that she works as hard and as efficiently as she did before her marriage, at work that is not as congenial as her former position, but she never has any money of her own, and feels humiliated at having to ask for a little for a show or for a soda.

Having a working agreement before marriage might be a good idea. An extravagant wife who does not know the value of money is a great hardship and handicap to a man; but a husband who speaks of "my money," as if his wife's work was of no value, and who never trusts her with a cent, is a burden no woman should have to bear.

Do you keep your house immaculate and cook good meals? You do no work outside of the home. I take it, from your letter, if that is so, what do you mean by saying you are doing "your share of the work," and your husband's washing and ironing? When a wife does nothing but the housework and there is not too much of that, her share is the washing and ironing—either doing them herself, or seeing that they are done properly—and all the numerous things that make a smoothly running house.

If you are doing all this, you should certainly have something to say about the financial management of the home and have something for yourself. If you are not doing this, start right in doing your job properly, and then demand your rights, and if the nagging continues, you have my permission to leave and work where your efforts will be appreciated.

DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a young married woman and would like a bit of advice. I have been married a short time and my husband will not give me a cent of money for my own spending, and I know every day that he has some left over, but he never tells me how much, and he keeps it hid where I can't find it. He gets me the clothes I need.

"Don't you think a wife ought to get a little spending money for her own use? He also nags at me and finds fault with everything I

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

With football togs packed away in moth balls until another year rolls around, Xenia Central High, along with other schools in the Miami Valley League, will now turn its attention to winter's most popular indoor sport, commonly known as basketball.

Bucanier court practice will probably be inaugurated next Tuesday afternoon and Central High gymnasium, scene of so many exciting hardwood contests in past seasons, will soon be resounding to the echo of bouncing basketballs.

By scoring one touchdown in the Thanksgiving Day game with Troy, Joe Clegg, flashy backfield star on Piqua Central High's champion football eleven, added six points to his previous total and assured himself of individual scoring honors in the Miami Valley League for the 1930 season. Joe scored seven touchdowns and three points after for forty-five points. Most of the veteran players on the team were runners up to him with thirty-nine points as he crossed goal lines of opposing league teams six times and added three points after touchdowns. Hippert, of Miamiburg, finished in third place with twenty-four points, while Birch Bell, Xenia, and Comoli of Piqua, tied for fourth place with twenty-one points apiece.

Ed Jacobs, Dayton Pike, senior and star tackle on Muskingum College's football team during the past season, earned a berth on the second all-star team of the Ohio Conference selected by The Associated Press. Two mythical conference eleven were picked with the co-operation of coaches, officials and newspaper men. "Jake" was a power on the Muskie line all season.

Twenty-five candidates turned out recently for first basketball practice at Wilberforce University. Most of the veteran players from last season were members of the football squad, however, and will not be available until next week. A complete schedule for the season has not been worked out but the "Force" will probably open its season December 19, against the Wilbur Wright Collegians.

Editor Raymond Higgins, much to our chagrin, surprised us and probably himself also by picking thirteen winners in eighteen football games played Thanksgiving Day. Two other games ended in ties and so he had only three losers. Several of his winners may also be classified as upsets and we arrived at the conclusion he was either lucky or had advance information. Be that as it may he had these winners Turkey Day.

Dayton 8, Wittenberg 33, Xavier 0, Haskell Indians 33, Ohio 0, Oregon State 12, W. Virginia 0, Kansas Aggies 10, Nebraska 9, Syracuse 19, Columbia 7, Colgate 27, Brown 0, Pittsburgh 19, Penn. State 12, Alabama 13, Georgia 0, Florida 55, Georgia Tech. 7, Tennessee 8, Kentucky 0, St. Mary 7, Oregon 6, Southern California 32, U. of Washington 0, Marquette 25, Butler 0.

These games ended in ties: St. Louis U. 7, Washington U. 7, Missouri 0, Oklahoma 0, Ray had these three losers: Cincinnati 6, Miami 0, Texas 26, Texas Aggies 0, Cornell 13, Pennsylvania 7.

LOOP SEASON ENDS; PIQUA IS CHAMPION FOR SECOND SEASON

Greenville, With Three Ties Lands In Cellar

The 1930 football season in the Miami Valley League faded into history Thanksgiving Day with the playing of two league games on snow-carpeted gridirons. Piqua Central skidded and slipped to a 20 to 0 victory over Troy High before 2,500 shivering fans at Piqua to conclude its second straight league season undefeated, while Sidney and Greenville struggled to a scoreless tie under similar adverse conditions at Greenville.

Miamisburg finished in second place, Sidney in third place and Xenia and Troy tied for fourth position. Greenville failed to win a league game but tied three, playing draws with Troy, Xenia and Sidney.

Piqua Central amassed 127 points in five league games against thirteen opponents. Here is the final league standing:

Team	W. L. Tie	Pct.	P. O. P.
Piqua	5 0 0	1.000	127 31
Miamisburg	3 2 0	.600	37 38
Sidney	2 2 1	.500	27 43

Lang Falcons Capture Opening Court Game

BEAT LEBANON TEAM IN SEASON'S DEBUT ON FOREIGN COURT

Local Independents Show Real Form In Initial Game

HIS Lang Chevrolet Co. basketball team, the Lang Falcons, Xenia's latest bid for professional basketball recognition, gave every evidence of intending to go places and do things in its debut at Lebanon Friday night, defeating Harmon Hall 44 to 37 in a close and interesting game.

Former college and high school court stars who compose the lineup of the Langs, exhibited talents that had made them stars in school and even in the season exhibited fast-breaking floor work, almost perfect signal operation and keen eyes for shooting that was a revelation to the small crowd of Xenia fans that accompanied the team.

Fred "Bulldog" Smith, former Central High and Wilmington College star, who has shown himself adept at softball, football and basketball during the last few months, led the Falcon attack from the center position scoring seven field goals and one foul for a total of fifteen points.

Three Lang performers who had never been seen in action locally before, drew enthusiastic comments. They were Noel and Marion Putnam and Coach Walter L. Wilson of Central High, all of whom had played college basketball. Noel Putnam played at Kenyon and Marion at Wittenberg in collegiate days and they performed nobly at guards while Wilson, a former Muskingum College star, sparkled at right forward. Bill LeSourd, whose peculiar southpaw talents are well-known locally and who captained one of the best court teams Ohio Wesleyan ever had, gave evidence he has lost none of his ability at deceptive ball handling and shooting. When Noel Putnam was removed on personal fouls late in the game, big Joe Smith, former high school star, got a little exercise but several other former stars were kept on the bench during the pastime.

Lebanon started the scoring early in the game when Williams collected a free shot, but the Xenia team shot back. Fisher dropped in a fielder for Lebanon and Apking missed a foul shot. M. Putnam got another fielder and his brother picked up a one-pointer and then Wilson sank his first field goal. LeSourd contributed a foul and Dakin a fielder for the opposition but by this time "Bulldog" Smith had gotten his weather eye on the hoop and began contributing two-pointers with regularity. The half ended with Xenia leading 20 to 16 and the Falcons managed to maintain this margin at the end after a rocky period during the second half when fielders by Williams and Van Ness put the Lebanon quiet in front.

These leads, Williams and Van Ness, sparked in the attack of Harmon Hall and Fisher played well at guard. The Falcons will take on their next foe at Wilmington College Thursday, meeting Wilmington College. The lineup:

PICK ALL-EASTERN FOOTBALL TEAM

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Picking an all-eastern football eleven is a difficult and touchy undertaking which should be approached humbly, and with misgivings. For no matter how good are the players whom you select, you are certain to be plagued with the thought that you have left out the stars.

The third period found both teams fighting hard, with West Virginia making some of its best gains in this period. Ross cut the ends and knifed off tackle for several gains but when the crisis came, the West Virginians were lacking with the offensive punch necessary to manufacture a score.

Because of the great kicking of Scurry, Wilberforce half back, the Ohioans were able to drive the Mountaineers deep in their own territory near the middle of the

FOOTBALL STAR TO TAKE BRIDE

The engagement of J. Gordon Bristow, captain of the University of Oklahoma football team in 1924, to Miss Estelle Hutto of Hg Spring, Tex., has just been announced. Bristow recently rescued his brother, J. E. Bristow, of San Angelo, Tex., wealthy oil operator, from Mexican bandits who had kidnapped him. Couple shown above.

DEFEATS WEST VIRGINIA 13-0 IN RENEWAL OF ANNUAL BATTLE

Cold Weather Hampers Teams Before Crowd Of 1,500 Shivering Fans; "Bull" Moore Stars In Last Game For Winners

By W. I. GIBSON
Playing on a snow-covered and wind-swept field as the mercury hovered just below the zero mark, the fighting Wilberforce University Bulldogs took the sting from the West Virginia State College Yellowjackets to the tune of 13 to 0, Thanksgiving Day while a crowd of 1,500 nearly frozen fans looked on.

The extreme cold worked a great hardship on the players and fumbles were frequent. From the beginning of the game until the final whistle it was evident that the Ohioans had the stronger team and while the margin of victory may seem decisive the Bulldogs missed three touchdowns when within easy scoring distance because of fumbles.

West Virginia kicked off to Wilberforce, and "Bull" Moore, receiving the oval on his twenty-yard line, advanced it almost to midfield before being stopped. With Tynes and Thornhill alternating in carrying the ball, Wilberforce worked the oval to the West Virginia three-yard line, where the Mountaineer forward wall stiffened and held the locals for downs.

Nash kicked off of bounds on his own forty-five yard line and the Bulldogs started another drive goalward. On the second play, Moore, receiving the ball on a criss-cross play, romped around the West Virginia left end on a beautiful thirty-yard run. The Bulldogs then drove to the four-yard stripe, from which point "Dad" Tynes whirled himself over the goal line. Moore's kick for the extra point went below the cross bar.

The remainder of the first period and all of the second period were scoreless, with Wilberforce the aggressor. Buckeye forwards worked the oval to the thirty-yard line, where the latter having an advantage in having the wind at his back. Sweeping end runs and line smashes from fake formations were featuring the Wilberforce attack and time and again Ashe and Thornhill hit off tackle for gains or Moore and Tynes snipped off yardage around the

With the ball on the five-yard line in the second period, Thornhill juggled a pass from center and then dropped it. West Virginia recovered and kicking out of danger. Most of the West Virginians' gaining was being done by Ross and Roxdale, but these gains were infrequent as on the majority of occasions the Buckeye forwards would break through to nail the runner in his tracks, many times for a material loss.

"Dog" Clark Russell and Moore were particularly outstanding on the defensive, while the work of "Red" Fowler, All-American Wilberforce end, was brilliant, the wingman being especially effective in getting down under punts to nab the receiver as the latter caught the piskin.

Because of the cold, Coach Graves made several substitutions in the second period. "Jelly" Horne, the 265 pound guard, Mal Lewis, guard, "Abie" Rose, guard, Scurry, halfback, and "Sis" Lucas, quarterback, being among those sent in as relief men.

The third period found both teams fighting hard, with West Virginia making some of its best gains in this period. Ross cut the ends and knifed off tackle for several gains but when the crisis came, the West Virginians were lacking with the offensive punch necessary to manufacture a score.

Because of the great kicking of Scurry, Wilberforce half back, the Ohioans were able to drive the Mountaineers deep in their own territory near the middle of the

EXPECT 125,000 TO WITNESS ARMY AND NOTRE DAME BATTLE

Irish Favorites In Pre-Game Dope; Army No Set-Up

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Football history was to be made this afternoon when the high-powered athletes of Notre Dame and Army dig their cleats into the frozen turf of Soldiers Field, determined to give their utmost to protect the unbeaten records carried into the fray by both elevens.

It was the first time that the two great teams had ever met outside the confines of New York State, and their initial appearance in the middle west was to be the occasion for an outpouring of close to 125,000 spectators—probably the largest crowd that has ever seen a football game in the United States.

Notre Dame, naturally, was a pregame favorite to score a victory on the wind-swept field, for the power shown by Knute Rockne's Irish in last week's Northwestern game amply proved to scoffers just how strong the team really is. It demonstrated that the players can withstand the assault of a man-killing line—one of Army's biggest assets—that they can repel the thrusts of a fast and versatile backfield, and that they are constantly on the alert for the opening that will win the game.

All these things the Notre Dame team demonstrated in no uncertain manner while sweeping the Wildcats from their path to a national title, but at the same time the fight they encountered in that pastime was being pointed out by Army followers as one of the reasons why the cadets stood a good chance to win.

From Notre Dame headquarters, however, came the assurance that every man was in tip-top shape, physically at least. Bruises and bumps sustained against the Wildcats have vanished during the past week, and the "will to win" was predominant. Communique from the Army camp were just as optimistic. The cadets, although they have beaten the Irish only four times in seventeen years, are always confident of victory, and today's contest was no exception.

THREE KILLED BY ASSASSIN

Farmer, Wife And Son Hacked To Death

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—Several strangers seen in the vicinity by neighbors were sought today as suspects in the murders of a wealthy farmer of Willow Brook, his wife, daughter and son. They were hacked to death by an assassin wielding an eight-inch dirk.

Those dead are Husted Germond, his wife, Mabel, their daughter, Bernice, 18, and a younger son, Raymond, 8. Each of the four victims was stabbed twenty or more times.

The bodies of Husted and his son were found by Wilbur Coon, dairy employee who visited the farm to learn why milk from the farm had not been delivered to the creamery.

BOBBY JONES

1922—Veteran Champion of the South at 20!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of picture series telling the life story of Bobby Jones, retired golf king.

Bobby Jones won the East Lake, Atlanta, Ga., course championship in 1915 when only 13 years old. He was Georgia state champion the next year and entered his first national amateur meet, leading the first half of the qualifying play, but lost out in the third round. And only 14 years old! In 1917 he won the southern amateur title. In 1919 he was runner-up in the national amateur. In 1920 he was national amateur medalist, but lost in the semi-finals to Francis Ouimet. In 1921 he made his first trip abroad with the Walker cup team. In 1922 he again was southern champion and was tied for second in the national open and semi-finalist in the national amateur.

FESLER MAKES ALL-AMERICAN ON KILGALLE N'S SELECTIONS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Now that the 1930 football season is drawing to a close, the orthodox thing to do journalistically is to select an All-American team. This we do today, herewith, making our selections not only on the basis of reports from 121 national football experts from all parts of the country.

Here are our All-American players:

J. L. KILGALLEN team:
Baker, Northwestern, left end
Sington, Alabama, left tackle
Beckett, California, left guard
Tinknor, Harvard, center
Maddox, Georgia, right guard
Edwards, Washington State, right tackle
Fesler, Ohio State, right end
Carideo, Notre Dame, quarterback
Murphy, Fordham, left half back
Schwartz, Notre Dame, right half back
Macaluso, Colgate, fullback
Every man on this mythical eleven is a star. Macaluso, fullback, is the leading scorer of the country. Schwartz and Murphy, the halfbacks, have shone brilliantly. Carideo of Notre Dame, a great field general, is my choice for quarterback over such grand players as Booth of Yale, Newnam of Michigan and Wood of Harvard. The ends, Baker and Fesler, are top notch. Baker, six feet two, is a great defensive player and a marvelous catcher of forward passes. Fesler not only performed as a defensive end but was extremely effective as an offensive back. The tackles Sington of Alabama and Edwards of Washington State, leave nothing to be desired. The guards, Beckett of California and Maddox of Georgia, have come through magnificently. And where is there a greater center than Ben Tinknor of Harvard?

There is, however, such a wealth of first class material that I have selected a second and third team, as follows:

SECOND TEAM
Rhea, Nebraska, left tackle
Humber, Army, left guard
Hein, Washington State, center
Woodworth, Northwestern, right guard
Lubratovich, Wisconsin, right tackle
Dalrymple, Tulane, right end
Booth, Yale, quarterback
Brill, Notre Dame, right half back
Cain, Alabama, fullback
THIRD TEAM
Arbelbibe, Southern California, left end
Linehan, Yale, left guard
Roberts, Tulane, center
Colbert, Oregon, right guard
Maree, Georgia Tech, right tackle
Ellert, Syracuse, right end
Newman, Michigan, quarterback
Risk, Purdue, left half back
Christensen, Utah University, right half back
Roberts, Georgia, fullback.
"Honorable mention" must quickly be given to such grand performers as Quarterbacks Barry Wood of Harvard, Ray Stecker of Army and Hanley of Northwestern; such fine half backs as Tanguay of New York University and Schwartz of Washington State; such fullbacks as Russell of Northwestern and Brovelli of St. Marys; such splendid guards as Kabat of Wisconsin and Wisniewski of Fordham; such tackles as Van Bibber, Purdue and Horwitz, Chicago; such ends as "Catfish" Smith of Georgia, Conley of Notre Dame and Messenger of Army, and centers of the caliber of Morrison of Michigan and Slano of Fordham.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Stocks rallied at the week-end in one of the busiest Saturday sessions since the mid-summer lull. Instead of attempting to widen the price declines in the leading stocks, professionals were generally on the buying side, paying slightly higher prices for the leading automobile, department store, copper, steel and utility shares. The rails and oils were still under pressure, though sharp recoveries were made by some of the high-priced rails. Atchafson spurred to 188 near the close.

Copper stocks moved up in the final period. Kennecott closed about 2 points higher, at 28 1/2. American Smelting up 1 5/8 at 51 7/8 and Anaconda Copper up 1 3/8 at 36 1/2.

United States Steel and American Can led the final rally for the industrials, the former advancing to 145 1/2, while Can closed 1 1/2 points higher, at 116 1/2. Westinghouse gained 1 1/4 at 99 5/8.

The Dow Jones averages showed a gain of 2 1/2 points for the industrials and half a point for the rails. Stock sales totaled 694,500 shares, exclusive of inactives and old-timers, the lowest turnover since August 23.

With football tugs packed away in moth balls until another year rolls around, Xenia Central High, along with other schools in the Miami Valley League, will now turn its attention to winter's most popular indoor sport, commonly known as basketball.

Buccaneer court practice will probably be inaugurated next Tuesday afternoon and Central High gymnasium, scene of so many exciting hardwood contests in past seasons, will soon be resounding to the echo of bouncing basketballs.

By scoring one touchdown in the Thanksgiving Day game with Troy, Joe Cirello, flashy backfield star on Piqua Central High's champion football eleven, added six points to his previous total and assured himself of individual scoring honors in the Miami Valley League for the 1930 season. Joe scored seven touchdowns and three points for forty-five points. Hart, a teammate, was runnerup to him with thirty-nine points as he crossed goal lines of opposing teams six times and added three points after touchdowns. Hilpert, of Miamiburg, finished in third place with twenty-four points, while Birch Bell, Xenia, and Comoli, of Piqua, tied for fourth place with twenty-one points apiece.

Ed Jacobs, Dayton Pike, senior and star tackle on Muskingum College's football team during the past season, earned a berth on the second all-star team of the Ohio Conference selected by The Associated Press. Two mythical conference eleven were picked with the co-operation of coaches, officials and newspaper men. "Jake" was a power on the Muskie line all season.

Twenty-five candidates turned out recently for first basketball practice at Wilberforce University. Most of the veteran players from last season were members of the football squad, however, and will not be available until next week. A complete schedule for the season has not been worked out but the "Force" will probably open its season December 19, against the Wilbur Wright Collegians.

Edward Richey, former Wilberforce star, will coach the basketball squad during the coming season, thereby shifting some of the burden of athletic responsibility from the shoulders of Harry Graves, football coach.

Editor Raymond Higgins, much to our chagrin, surprised us and probably himself also by picking thirteen winners in eighteen football games played Thanksgiving Day. Two other games ended in ties and so he had only three losers. Several of his winners may also be classed as upsets and we arrived at the conclusion he was either lucky or had advance inside information. Be that as it may he had these winners Turkey Day.

PIQUAS CHAMPION FOR SECOND SEASON

Greenville, With Three Ties Lands In Cellar

The 1930 football season in the Miami Valley League faded into history Thanksgiving Day with the playing of two league games on snow-carpeted grids.

Piqua Central skidded and slipped to a 20 to 0 victory over Troy High before 2,500 shivering fans at Piqua to conclude its second straight league season undefeated, while Sidney and Greenville struggled to a scoreless tie under similar adverse conditions at Greenville.

Miamisburg finished in second place, Sidney in third place and Xenia and Troy tied for fourth position. Greenville failed to win a league game but tied three, playing draws with Troy, Xenia and Sidney.

Piqua Central amassed 127 points in five league games against thirteen for opponents. Here is the final league standing:

When Noel Putnam was removed on personal fouls late in the game, big Joe Smith, former high school star, got a little exercise but several other former stars were kept on the bench during the pastime.

Lebanon started the scoring early in the game when Williams collected a free shot, but Marion Putnam's fielder put the Xenia team ahead a moment later. Fisher dropped in the attack for Lebanon and Apkins missed a foul shot. M. Putnam got another fielder and his brother picked up a one-pointer and then Wilson sank his first field goal. LeSourd contributed a foul and Dakin a fielder for the opposition but by this time "Bulldog" Smith had gotten his weather eye on the hoop and began controlling the game with regularity. The half ended with Xenia leading 20 to 16 and the Falcons managed to maintain this margin at the end after a rocky period during the second half when fielders by Williams and Van Ness put the Lebanon quintet in front.

These lads, Williams and Van Ness, spunked in the attack of Harmon Hall and Fisher played well at guard. The Falcons will take on their next foe at Wilmington next Thursday, meeting Wilmington College. The lineups:

PICK ALL-EASTERN
FOOTBALL TEAM

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Picking an all-eastern football eleven is a difficult and touchy undertaking which should be approached humbly, and with misgivings. For no matter how good are the players whom you select, you are certain to be plagued with the thought that you have left other stars equally as good—off the mythical team. It would require a rock-bound metal ego indeed to brazenly assert: "Here are the eleven best—there ain't any more," and let it go at that.

The writer, after peering at hundreds of capable football warriors all over the eastern sector on Saturday afternoons for weeks ventures the following all-eastern selection:

Center—Tiknor, Harvard.
Right guard—Wisniewski, Fordham.
Right tackle—Ellert, Syracuse.
Right end—Messinger, Army.
Quarterback—Booth, Yale.
Left halfback—Murphy, Fordham.
Right halfback—Tanguay, New York University.
Fullback—Macaluso, Colgate.

FOOTBALL STAR TO TAKE BRIDE

The engagement of J. Gordon Bristow, captain of the University of Oklahoma football team in 1924, to Miss Estelle Hutto of Big Spring, Tex., has just been announced.

Bristow recently rescued his father, J. E. Bristow, of San Angelo, Tex., wealthy oil operator, from Mexican bandits who had kidnapped him. Couple shown above.

DEFEATS WEST VIRGINIA 13-0
IN RENEWAL OF ANNUAL BATTLE

Cold Weather Hampers Teams Before Crowd Of 1,500 Shivering Fans; "Bull" Moore Stars In Last Game For Winners

By W. I. GIBSON

Playing on a snow-covered and wind-swept field as the mercury hovered just below the zero mark, the fighting Wilberforce University Bulldogs took the sting from the West Virginia State College Yellowjackets the tune of 13 to 0, Thanksgiving Day while a crowd of 1,500 nearly frozen fans looked on.

The extreme cold worked a great hardship on the players and fumbles were frequent. From the beginning of the game until the final whistle it was evident that the Ohioans had the stronger team and while the margin of victory may seem decisive the Bulldogs missed three touchdowns when within easy scoring distance because of fumbles.

West Virginia kicked off to Wilberforce, and "Bull" Moore, receiving the oval on his twenty-yard line, advanced it almost to midfield before being stopped. With Tynes and Thornhill alternating in carrying the ball, Wilberforce worked the oval to the West Virginia three-yard line, where the Mountaineer forward wall stiffened and held the locals for downs.

Nash kicked out of bounds on his own forty-five yard line and the Bulldogs started another drive goalward. On the second play, Moore, receiving the ball on a criss-cross play, romped around the West Virginia left end on a beautiful thirty-yard run. The Bulldogs then drove to the four-yard stripe, from which point "Dad" Tynes whirled himself over the goal line. Moore's kick for the extra point went below the cross bar.

The remainder of the first period and all of the second period were scoreless, with Wilberforce the aggressor for the major part of the time. Nash and Moore engaged in a punting duel, the latter having an advantage in having the wind at his back. Sweeping end runs and line smashes from fake formations were featuring the Wilberforce attack and time and again Ashe and Thornhill left off tackle for gains or Moore and Tynes snipped off yardage around the terminals.

With the ball on the five-yard line in the second period, Thornhill juggled a pass from center and then dropped it, West Virginia recovering and kicking out of danger. Most of the West Virginians' gaining was being done by Ross and Roxdale, but these gains were infrequent as on the majority of occasions the Buckeye forwards would break through to nail the runner in his tracks, many times for a material loss.

"Dog" Clark, Russell and Moore were particularly outstanding on the defensive, while the work of "Red" Fowler, All-American Wilberforce end, was brilliant, the wingman being especially effective in getting down under punts to nab the receiver as the latter caught the pigskin.

Because of the cold, Coach Graves made several substitutions in the second period, "Jelly" Horne, the 265 pound guard, Mal Lewis, guard, "Abie" Rose, guard, Scurry, halfback, and "Sis" Lucas, quarterback, being among those sent in as relief men.

The third period found both teams fighting hard, with West Virginia making some of its best gains in this period. Ross cut the ends and knifed off tackle for several gains but when the crisis came, the West Virginians were lacking with the offensive punch necessary to manufacture a score.

Because of the great kicking of Scurry, Wilberforce half back, the Ohioans were able to drive the Mountaineers deep in their own territory near the middle of the

EXPECT 125,000 TO WITNESS ARMY AND
NOTRE DAME BATTLEIrish Favorites In Pre-
Game Dope; Army
No Set-Up

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Football history was to be made this afternoon when the high-powered athletes of Notre Dame and Army dig their cleats into the frozen turf of Soldiers Field, determined to give their utmost to protect the unbeaten records carried into the fray by both teams.

It was the first time that the two great teams had ever met outside the confines of New York State, and their initial appearance in the middle west was to be the occasion for an outpouring of close to 125,000 spectators—probably the largest crowd that has ever seen a football game in the United States.

Notre Dame, naturally, was a pre-game favorite to score a victory on the wind-swept field; for the power shown by Knute Rockne's Irish in last week's Northwestern game amply proved to scoffers just how strong the team really is. It demonstrated that the players can withstand the assault of a man-killing line—one of Army's biggest assets—that they can repel the thrusts of a fast and versatile backfield, and that they are constantly on the alert for the opening that will win the game.

All these things the Notre Dame team demonstrated in no uncertain manner while sweeping the Wildcats from their path to a national title, but at the same time the fight they encountered in that pastime was being pointed out by Army followers as one of the reasons why the cadets stood a good chance to win.

From Notre Dame headquarters, however, came the assurance that every man was in tip-top shape, physically at least. Bruises and bumps sustained against the Wildcats have vanished during the past week, and the "will to win" was predominant, communications from the Army camp were just as optimistic. The cadets, although they have beaten the Irish only four times in seventeen years, are all ways confident of victory, and today's contest was no exception.

THREE KILLED
BY ASSASSINFarmer, Wife And Son
Hacked To Death

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—Several strangers seen in the vicinity by neighbors were sought today as suspects in the murders of a wealthy farmer of Willow Brook, his wife, daughter and son. They were hacked to death by an assassin wielding an eight-inch dirk.

These dead are Husted Germond, his wife, Mabel, their daughter, Bernice, 18, and a younger son, Raymond, 8. Each of the four victims was stabbed twenty or more times.

The bodies of Husted and his son were found by Wilbur Coon, dairy employee who visited the farm but not been delivered to the crematory.

COMMUNITY CHEST
PROCEEDS SLOWLY

With collections proceeding slowly, officials of the Community Chest campaign were Saturday awaiting the first of the week before making announcement of the progress toward the goal of $10,000.

The Wilson Engineering and Contracting Co. and The Brown Furniture Co. were added Saturday to the list of firms whose employees have contributed 100 per cent to the chest fund.

BOBBY JONES

Life in Pictures

1922—Veteran Champion of the South at 20!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of picture series telling the life story of Bobby Jones, retired golf king.

Bobby Jones won the East Lake, Atlanta, Ga., course championship in 1915 when only 13 years old. He was again southern champion the next year and entered his first national amateur meet, leading the first half of the qualifying play, but lost out in the third round. And only 14 years old! In 1917 he won the southern amateur title. In 1919 he was runner-up in the national amateur. In 1920 he was national amateur medalist, but lost in the semi-finals to Francis Ouimet. In 1921 he made his first trip abroad with the Walker cup team. In 1922 he again was southern champion and was tied for second in the national open and semi-finalist in the national amateur.

FESLER MAKES ALL-AMERICAN ON KILGALLEN'S SELECTIONS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Now that the 1930 football season is drawing to a close, the orthodox thing to do—journalistically—is to select an All-American team. This we do today, herewith, making our selections not on the writer's personal observations but on the basis of reports from all parts of the country. Here is our All-American team:

J. L. KILGALLEN team:
Beckett, California, left guard
Tiknor, Harvard, center
Maddox, Georgia, right guard
Edwards, Washington State, right tackle
Fesler, Ohio State, right end
Carideo, Notre Dame, quarterback
Murphy, Fordham, left half back
Schwartz, Notre Dame, right half back
Macaluso, Colgate, fullback.

Every man on this mythical eleven is a star. Macaluso, fullback, is the leading scorer of the country. Schwartz and Murphy, the backs, have shone brilliantly. Carideo of Notre Dame, a great field general, is my choice for quarterback over such grand players as Booth of Yale, Newman of Michigan and Wood of Harvard. The ends, Baker and Fesler, are top notch. Baker, six feet two, is a great defensive player and a marvelous catcher of forward passes. Fesler not only performed as a defensive end but was extremely effective as an offensive back. The tackles Sington of Alabama and Edwards of Washington State, leave nothing to be desired. The guards, Beckett of California and Maddox of Georgia, have come through magnificently. And where is there a greater center than Ben Tiknor of Harvard?

There is, however, such a wealth of first class material that I have selected a second and third team, as follows:

SECOND TEAM
Humber, Army, left guard
Hein, Washington State, center
Woodworth, Northwestern, right guard
Lubratovich, Wisconsin, right tackle
Dalrymple, Tulane, right end
Booth, Yale, quarterback
Brill, Notre Dame, right half back
Cain, Alabama, fullback.

THIRD TEAM
Arhelbibe, Southern California, left end
Linehan, Yale, left guard
Roberts, Tulane, center
Colbert, Oregon, right guard
Maree, Georgia Tech, right tackle
Ellert, Syracuse, right end
Newman, Michigan, quarterback
Christensen, Utah University, right half back
Roberts, Georgia, fullback.

"Honorable mention" must quickly be given to such grand performers as Quarterbacks Barry Wood of Harvard, Ray Stecker of Army and Hanley of Northwestern; such fine half backs as Tan-

Jugos Kidnap Pretty Girls and Defy King

Prenuptial Abductions Still Continue Where Tradition Permits
Odd Old Custom in Spite of the Law

HASSAN BEN DZNIO MARA PETROV MILOS RADOVANOVIC

BELGRADE, Nov. 29. — Just an old Jugoslavian custom, that in so many words is how Jugoslavians regard the fierce but oftentimes pleasant custom of the kidnaping of young women by their adoring lovers. For the kidnaping is very often the highlight of courtships in the best families. And even if a girl doesn't like it, it is nice for her to know that her lover is so daring.

It was thought by many that a new regime would mean a cessation of the old custom, and parents thought that the kidnapings would be frowned upon by ukase of the new king. But whatever the throne may think about things, there is a flamboyant disregard of authority and the kidnapings are progressing at a great rate. Maybe it keeps the good old cavalier instinct going. This is especially true of Bosnia where swarthy, bearded men, who are the dandies of their choice and ride briskly away without even informing papa.

Of course sometimes news of the ardent swain's intentions become known and then frequently the girl is carried away only after fierce struggles with her brothers and other male relatives assisting in the fray. Frequently the kidnapings take place in the night and the young lady is carried off without a chance to snatch a toothbrush. She is sometimes so scared or too wise to scream and so she is flung across the saddle and her adorer rides away with her to a stronghold in the mountains of a far-distant village. And so cunningly situated is the retreat that very often the two are not discovered until they voluntarily reveal themselves. And then father is generally more than ready to agree to a hasty marriage. And so parental opposition in Bulgaria invariably doesn't do much good. So glad is papa that the marriage is to take place that he often hands the gallant swain a bag of gold. For they like a scandal in Jugoslavia just as little as anywhere else. And so very few girls are ever kidnaped twice.

To illustrate the tactics of kidnaping Bosnian gallants, there is the story of Milos Radovanovic and beautiful Leposava Vukasino-vic. Milos was quite the nicest young man in town and Leposava was only too anxious to marry him. But a grim maiden aunt had other plans for her niece and so the lovers were perforce content for a time with secret meetings. When the aunt learned that Milos was planning to abduct his beloved, she notified the man she had chosen as Leposava's future husband. She then disguised herself as her niece and when Milos broke into the room he saw what he thought was his sweetheart wearing clothes that he had often admired her in, he promptly abducted the fair figure.

As Milos and his lovely bride galloped along, he lifted the veil from his loved one's face to steal a kiss. But as the moon broke through the sheltering clouds, he saw that he had stolen auntie instead. Milos was so angry that he pitched his companion in a ditch and then tore back to the house of his sweetheart. He arrived just in the nick of time. His rival was at that very moment carrying off the fair Leposava. Milos fired two shots and in the confusion escaped with the girl. As they rode swiftly through the night they waved at the match-making aunt sitting all bedraggled in a ditch. And it is nice to report that Milos and his wife are still living together happily, even if auntie hasn't forgiven them.

Abductions are serious when a poor man carries off a wealthy or an aristocratic girl. Then it is generally termed kidnaping for ransom and treated as an offense. Because of this and other reasons, several authorities are suggesting the adoption of a code of laws forbidding the practice and naming severe penalties for the abductors.

JORETTA

A LOVE STORY

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER Author of "DAD'S GIRL" Etc.

© 1930, Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST: Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of a wealthy merchant of the west, whose socially ambitious mother has influenced her to become engaged to Norman Williams, wealthy shipbuilder, from whom her vain and pompous father has just bought a palatial yacht, with which he makes mysterious trips to a southern port, commanding his crew to stay aboard until his return. Joretta meets the chief engineer of the yacht, Jim Norton, who is handsome and cultured and attracts her from the first. The wedding is planned for the autumn, but as Norman's unpleasantness increases, Joretta resents him. He rudely shows his jealousy of Vernon La Cossit, a guest from New York who writes musical reviews. She gives a theater party at a movie premiere and they go to a night club afterward. She has asked Jim to show her sometime all about the machinery of the yacht, feigning interests in engines but more interested in him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I'll have to admit that I never saw a gayer first-night on Broadway," La Cossit told Joretta, dancing with her. "Hollywood knows her stuff. When may I take you to a New York premiere—the new Indian play, in the autumn?" Say you will be there. It's a go!"

"I couldn't promise, though I'd love to. Perhaps. You know I'm to be married in October."

"So soon? Worse luck. I see your devoted has his eagle eye on me, too. I don't believe he trusts me. In fact, I'm sure he doesn't. Well, I don't blame him. The only way a fellow can be sure of keeping what he's got is to get something no one else wants. And whatever Williams did, he didn't do that! How I do warble on. Aren't you glad you don't always have to listen to my chatter?"

"I'll be sorry when I can't hear it, really. I've enjoyed your being here immensely, and I hope you come very soon again."

"What's the use, if you're going to be married in October?"

"Foolish one. There are plenty more girls as likable as I am."

"Where—oh, where? I'm sure I haven't seen them, if there are. Curses, the music stops. I'll have to return you to your glowering mate."

Joretta liked his absurd chatter, even if she didn't take it seriously. The evening was sublime. Norman was delightful. He lingered awhile when he took her home, though it was then very late—or early.

"The worst part of seeing you is leaving you," he told her. "Well, what of it? He would talk to her as if she were really interested, as she was; while Norman would only be amused at her questions and treat her interest with tolerant indifference. He would probably resent her admission of having any interest in mechanical devices. He wanted his wife to be helpless, ornamental and submissive to him. Entirely dependent upon him and his wealth."

So she said, "I'll wait for dad. Norman. You go to lunch and don't let my being here interfere with your plans." She thought, "I'll slip away soon and drive somewhere until I think he has left the yacht. Then I'll come back. He won't stay there long."

"All right, dear. Tell your dad I'm here and perhaps he will want to see me on the boat. Come along with him."

Time dragged interminably. She drove up the coast road, parked the car on the beach and curled up beside a sand dune to wait and watch the sea. The sun was mellow-warm. Ice plants dotted the sand dunes, heaped at regular intervals along the beach; dried kelp was strewn about. Down the beach, a group of children laughed and shouted, running along the water's edge with the waves spanking at their frolicking heels. Two women sat under a beach umbrella, chatting, and a car was parked nearby.

Joretta thought, "Some day, I'll bring my children down on the beach to play—and a strange, frightened, hollow-eyed fellow, thinking of Norman. His children, they would be. Envious children, everyone would think. Their pictures—grandchildren of two famous Californian business men—would appear in the Sunday rotogravure at regular intervals; and then they would grow up and repeat the cycle of their parents' lives: debuts, engagements, weddings, on and on.

Like the sea, its waves pounding the beach, receding, advancing again, over and over, forever. She gazed far out where row on row of sparkling, lacy waves rose and fell with rhythmic sways, like diaphanous frills of pale blue chiffon on the gown of some lovely debutante. While the sea gulls dipped and glided above them, flashing in the light like crystal embroidery twinkling as she swayed and danced.

But if she ever had a daughter, Joretta thought ruefully, she would be very careful not to usurp her independence too completely. Of course, she supposed all mothers monopolized their children's activities; but she would never influence their choice of whom they should marry. That, she vowed grimly, would be their own affair and she would place them under no obligation to please her about it.

She stood up suddenly, shook the sand from her clothes and looked at her watch. She had been there for more than an hour. By the time she returned, Norman would surely have left.

When she drove into the parking space, she saw nothing of his car. She looked about, hoping she would encounter no one she knew, and sauntered down toward the pier.

The Montezuma, gleaming new, squatted placidly in the slip, with no sign of life on her decks. Joretta walked along the pier.

Jugos Kidnap Pretty Girls and Defy King

Prenuptial Abductions Still Continue Where Tradition Permits Odd Old Custom in Spite of the Law

BELGRADE, Nov. 29.—Just as old Yugoslavian custom.

That, in so many words is how Jugoslavians regard the fierce but oftentimes pleasant custom of the kidnaping of young women by their adoring lovers. For the kidnaping is very often the highlight of courtships in the best families. And even if a girl doesn't like it, it is nice for her to know that her lover is so daring.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I'll have to admit that I never saw a gayer first-night on Broadway," La Cossit told Joretta, dancing with her. "Hollywood knows her stuff. When may I take you to a New York premiere—the new Indian play, in the autumn? Say you will be there. It's a go?"

"Where—oh, where? I'm sure I haven't seen them, if there are. Curses, the music stops. I'll have to return you to your glowering mate."

Joretta liked his absurd chatter, even if she didn't take it seriously. The evening was sublime. Norman was delightful. He lingered awhile when he took her home, though it was then very late—or early.

"The worst part of seeing you is leaving you," he told her. "And the best part of leaving is that you can come back," she added playfully. "Parting is such sweet pleasure."

"Whoever said that had never left a girl he wanted as I want you."

"When we are married, there will be no meetings and partings, and that is the best part of it, really."

"Not the best, sweetheart. And I'm delighted to hear you say there will be no partings. I never want you to leave me."

"Why, Norman?" she asked, feeling his rudeness to Vernon.

"A wife should never leave her husband. I know they do these days—but that's just where the trouble is manufactured for half the divorces."

"But you think it's all right for a man to leave his wife whenever it pleases him?"

"Oh, men often have to leave, for business reasons, particularly."

"But, Norman, isn't the best of loving the trusting of each other and being generous about what the other one wants to do?"

"Oh, that all sounds well enough. Jetty. But when a man loves a girl as I do you, and gets her, he can't be expected to want her to leave him and—oh, Jetty, you just make me mad about you," holding her fiercely and crushing her mouth with kisses.

Later, as she went slowly up the winding, iron-railed stairs, she wondered why she couldn't respond more wholly to Norman's caresses. Already she rather disliked the thought of parting from him—because of the emotion it always involved.

And then she remembered—to-morrow. She was going down to the Montezuma to see—Jim Norton. And experienced a pleasant response of interest. All through her preparations for the night—or what was left of it—she anticipated what she would do on the morrow, rather than remembering what she had done that day.

She even planned just what to wear, compared effects and colors, although it was characteristic of her that she seldom made much ado over her costumes. She looked well in anything, and knew it, but was not vain or conceited about it. Her choice was a stunning pale green Kasha crepe ensemble that harmonized perfectly with her cream and green roadster.

Uncle Charley called her a few minutes the next morning to tell her that the Montezuma was anchored in the harbor at the yacht club, as she had previously arranged. Her heart fluttered strangely, even then. Not at the sound of Uncle Charley's voice, of course, but at the import of the message. Perhaps because she was taking it upon herself to do a rather unusual thing—keeping an appointment with an employee of her father's. In the monotony of her program—or so she thought her days monotonous—any unconventional incident assumed the nature of an adventure.

She rather gloried in the experience of telling no one where she was going—for a drive she told her mother, without a qualm—and set out alone, feeling ever so independent and sure of herself.

And then, calamity of calamities, she parked her car at the club and came face to face with—Norman. "Hello, darling, I didn't know you were coming here. Have you been to lunch?"

"Oh—yes—why, I came over to play golf with—dad. Have you seen him?"

"No, I haven't. Won't you have lunch with me while you're waiting? Came down to look over the yacht before your father leaves tomorrow."

"You mean—the Montezuma?" she asked helplessly, foolishly, with keen disappointment. "I didn't know dad was leaving for anywhere tomorrow."

"Said he was leaving for another fishing trip. He's certainly taking a lot of pleasure with that boat. Just what he needed, too."

Joretta felt panicky. Here she was, lying to Norman, placed in the foolish position of waiting for her father who wouldn't appear at all, and she couldn't go aboard the Montezuma if Norman were going there, too. Oh! she might lunch with Norman and then go down with him, and he would tell her what she wanted to know, but—

It was then that she admitted to herself that it was Jim Norton whom she wanted to see and talk with about the yacht. Well, what of it? He would talk to her as if she were really interested, as she was; while Norman would only be amused at her questions and treat her interest with tolerant indifference. He would probably resent her admission of having any interest in mechanical devices. He wanted his wife to be helpless, ornamental and submissive to him. Entirely dependent upon him and his wealth.

So she said, "I'll wait for dad. Norman. You go to lunch and don't let my being here interfere with your plans." She thought, "I'll slip away soon and drive somewhere until I think he has left the yacht. Then I'll come back. He won't stay there long."

"All right, dear. Tell your dad I'm here and perhaps he will want to see me on the boat. Come along with him."

Time dragged interminably. She drove up the coast road, parked the car on the beach and curled up beside a sand dune to wait and watch the sea. The sun was mellow-warm. Ice plants dotted the sand dunes, heaped at regular intervals along the beach; dried kelp was strewn about. Down the beach, a group of children laughed and shouted, running along the water's edge with the waves spanking at their frolicking heels. Two women sat under a beach umbrella, chatting, and a car was parked nearby.

Joretta thought, "Some day, I'll bring my children down on the beach to play—" and a strange, frightened hollowness filled her, thinking of Norman. His children, they would be. Envious children, everyone would think. Their pictures—grandchildren of two famous California business men—would appear the Sunday rotation with regular intervals; and then they would grow up and repeat the cycle of their parents' lives: debuts, engagements, weddings, on and on.

Like the sea; its waves pounding the beach, receding, advancing again, over and over, forever. She gazed far out where row on row of sparkling, lacy waves rose and fell with rhythmic sways, like diaphanous frills of pale blue chiffon on the gown of some lovely debutante. While the sea gulls dipped and glided above them, flashing in the light like crystal embroidery twinkling as she swayed and danced.

But if she ever had a daughter, Joretta thought ruefully, she would be very careful not to usurp her independence too completely. Of course, she supposed all mothers monopolized their children's activities; but she would never influence their choice of whom they should marry. That, she vowed grimly, would be their own affair and she would place them under no obligation to please her about it.

She stood up suddenly, shook the sand from her clothes and looked at her watch. She had been there for more than an hour. By the time she returned, Norman would surely have left.

When she drove into the parking space, she saw nothing of his car; so she looked about, hoping she would encounter no one she knew, and sauntered down toward the pier.

The Montezuma, gleaming new, squatted placidly in the slip, with no sign of life on her decks. Joretta walked along the pier.

Don Marquis, the reformed New York newspaper columnist, is writing a talkie for Will Rogers that sounds like a natural for his type of comedy.

Marquis is the author of "The Old Soak." His tale for Rogers concerns a country doctor, who listens to all kinds of troubles and who dispenses advice and homey philosophy as frequently as he does pills and syrups.

Rogers is slated to film this story following the completion of "A

LEWIS STONE

Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court." No title has been determined for the picture.

Rogers recently won much praise for contributing his salary for a week's personal appearances to the Community Chest. For the most part he has been cool to all appeals for his services at benefits.

When London's favorite toast, Tallulah Bankhead, returns to her native land to make a picture, Paramount is going to do right by her in the way of a supporting cast.

Clive Brook will go East to play opposite the stage star in "Her Past." The story and dialogue are by Donald Ogden Stewart, one of the leading survivors of smart comedy and direction will be by George Cukor and Cyril Gardner. She will reach New York about January 13.

The large cities in Europe demand talkies now just as they do in this country. Paramount applies American production ingenuity to supply the foreign markets. The Paris studio of the organization receives a print of a picture made in Hollywood. This is accompanied by blueprints of the sets used. These sets are duplicated and the action studied closely. Finally thirteen different directors run thirteen different casts through similar action in the duplicate sets and Fairmount has a film ready for release in thirteen languages.

Fred Datig, casting director at Paramount, reveals that only one out of every 122 extra girls registered with his office has red hair. The total number is twenty out of 2,450 on the records. There are 1,032 blondes, 518 with light brown hair, 421 with dark brown hair and 479 with black hair.

The distinguished presence of Lewis Stone has been added to the cast of Fox's "All Women are Bad." The film will be a starring picture for Edmund Lowe and will be Jeanette MacDonald's first opportunity under her new Fox contract. Stone will be borrow from M.G.M.

Fans continue to write letters to stars and ask for picture even after the stars are dead. Lon Chaney receives dozens of letters every week.

BOARD MEMBERS TO BE CALLED BECAUSE OF NARROW CONTEST

check of the vote for lieutenant-governor last week. It resulted in one precinct vote being counted twice and made a change of fifteen or sixteen votes in the total vote in favor of Brown over Pickrel.

Latest tabulations show William G. Pickrel, Democrat of Dayton, leading in the state by the narrow margin of 216 votes over John G. Brown, Republican, present lieutenant governor.

The vote in Greene County was: Brown, 5612; Pickrel, 4534.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29.—The outcome of the race between William G. Pickrel, (D) of Dayton, and John T. Brown, (R) of Mechanicsburg, for lieutenant governor at the last election remained "up in the air today," pending an opinion from Attorney General Gilbert Bettman where there is any authority for a complete county-by-county check of ballots cast November 2.

The result of the political contest, in which every vote, apparently, counts, will probably not be known for at least a week yet, it appeared today.

The state canvassing board, at a session late Friday, deferred action relative to the request of Lieut. Gov. Brown for a recheck of the votes cast in sixty-seven counties for lieutenant governor.

Some members of the board doubted whether the board has any right to order such a recheck. It was decided to ask Attorney General Bettman for a ruling as to whether the board, or secretary of State Clarence J. Brown himself, has such a right.

Another meeting of the board will be held after Bettman announces his ruling. The board comprises Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Secretary Brown, Attorney General Bettman, and State Auditor Joseph Tracy. At Friday's session, Dale Dunifon, one of the governor's secretaries, represented Governor Cooper, Assistant Attorney General William S. Ewalt represented Bettman and assistant State Auditor Church Brothen represented Tracy.

The meeting of the board was attended by Lieut. Gov. Brown and by Attorney Peter Dempsey, of Columbus, representing Pickrel. Dempsey submitted to the secretary of state a communication from Pickrel objecting to further rechecks and asking that Pickrel's certificate of election be issued at once.

Pickrel insisted that Ohio laws make no provision for such a recheck, in the absence of any evidence of fraud on the part of election officials. He declared that the duty of the canvassing board ends when it has canvassed the returns which have been forwarded by the county election boards to the secretary of state.

Pointing out that political candidates may ask for a recount, under certain legal conditions, in any county, Pickrel said there was no necessity for a searching investigation of election records in the various counties, for errors, or mistakes. Further delay in the declaration of the official result of the race for lieutenant governor is not justified, Pickrel stated.

Secretary Brown said he thought the board ought to express itself concerning Lieut. Gov. Brown's request for a recheck. He did not feel that it was up to him to pass upon the question by himself.

A recent recheck of the votes cast in twenty-one counties for lieutenant governor, Secretary Brown said, showed numerous discrepancies, which resulted in a net loss of thirty-seven votes for Pickrel and a net gain of eighteen votes for Brown.

As a result of this recheck, Pickrel's recent lead of 271 votes was reduced fifty-five votes, to 216. For the time being at least the Pickrel-Brown race stands: Pickrel, 916,668; Brown, 916,452.

The recheck disclosed errors ranging from a few votes up to at least 100. The 100-vote error was in Union County.

Secretary Brown announced that he will call members of the election boards of Defiance, Franklin, Greene, Richland, Union and Wayne Counties into his offices at the statehouse to explain why incorrect figures and totals appeared on abstracts sent by these boards to the secretary of state.

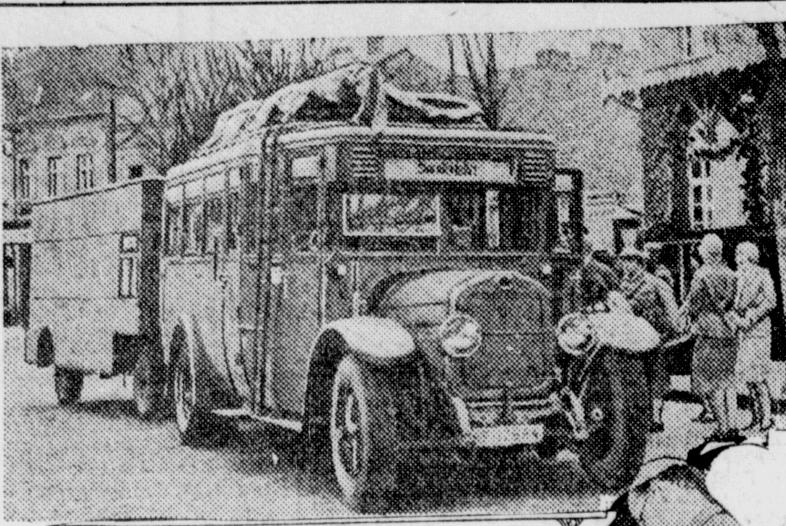

Attorney Dempsey argued against further investigation by the board or the secretary of state. He expressed belief that a checkup of the remaining counties would not result in the defeat of Pickrel.

Lieut. Gov. Brown stated he has been informed that an error of sixty votes, which should be counted for him, was made in one of the sixty-seven counties in which a recheck is requested. He expressed belief that, under the circumstances, a complete statewide recheck should be made.

Friends of Lieut. Gov. Brown pointed out that if the ratio of gain for Brown that characterized the recheck in the twenty-one counties, continues throughout the other sixty-seven counties, it will result in the re-election of Brown by a majority of at least sixty-four votes.

Traveling Theatre Tours Through Germany in Bus

Leading Actors and Actresses of German Stage, Touring the Hinterlands, Blaze the Torch of Drama and Bring Joy to Rural Villages.

THE TRAVELING THEATRE

ACTRESSES ADVERTISE OWN SHOW IN RING UP THE CURTAIN

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—In Germany the torch of the drama is alight in the tiniest town or village. The Traveling Players of Berlin, an organization financed by a wealthy and artistic sponsor, has in six years gained world-wide fame, and lovers of the drama in other lands are studying the methods of the motor mummery to ascertain whether their unique methods can be copied.

No mean or amateur productions are permitted by the German traveling players. If the setting is in a barn with hay and agricultural implements hastily pushed to one side, it makes no difference. The splendid orchestra plays, scenery and props are all used and a perfect lighting system adds to the reality and perfection of the production.

The idea was founded on a desire to afford steady employment for some of the ablest actors and actresses of the German stage, during the often inactive summer season. That and the wish to give people in outlying districts the opportunity to enjoy the best of plays presented by a capable cast with fine settings. A large motor bus and trailer were purchased. The bus has seats for thirty-five persons and ample luggage space. The trailer, a specially built van, holds the scenery and properties for a repertoire of six plays and one operetta. Costumes, like the scenery equipment and lighting, are the best.

The company numbers within its ranks, eighteen able performers, all except two being of the original company. There are five fine musicians and five mechanics. There are six new plays and a new and lively operetta, every year. The wandering players are versatile, they play broad farce, drawing-room comedy and tragedies. Some plays are from the classics of other days, others, are plays that have had long runs in some of the finest contemporary theatres. The orchestra is as much an attraction as the plays themselves. They are all symphony musicians.

The itinerary of the traveling players is made up before the company leaves Berlin, where they spend weeks in arduous and thorough rehearsals. Thus they know exactly when and where they will present their shows long in advance. The company plays in whatever auditorium is available. Sometimes it is the Council Chamber of the town or village, sometimes the auditorium of the town's largest concert or music hall. Occasionally the leading hotel's lobby or drawing room becomes for the nonce the theatre. Occasionally it is a lodge room. But whatever the spot, the players are not temperamental. They are proud of their art and feel that it does not depend upon settings to give it full emphasis. They are happy to bring the drama to the most out-of-the-way places. That is their purpose.

The patrons of the motor mummery eagerly await their share of the drama and always have some sort of a theatre ready for them when they arrive in their bus. The whole village assists in unloading and placing the scenery, wardrobe trunks, portable footlights, spotlights and the vast paraphernalia that even this smallest theatrical organization needs.

Needless to say the house is always sold out long in advance. There is always a capacity audience, vociferous in its enthusiasm. In the larger communities they stay a week presenting a different play nightly and an operetta at the matinee performance. In smaller districts they remain from one to three days. But wherever they go the tale is the same. Gratitude to those who find joy in giving the best of the theatre to those who are starved for the joy that even an ordinary play brings, be it presented before a rural or an urban audience.

CHRISTMAS CARDS FOR DELIVERY HERE MAY BE MAILED NOW

Xenians may mail Christmas cards for local delivery from now on until the holiday.

This is made possible through the placing of a large mail box for that purpose in the lobby of the post office, it was announced Saturday by Postmaster C. S. Frazer.

The box is for the accommodation of Xenia patrons, who may thus be able to write and mail their greeting cards for local delivery only, at any time, but the cards so deposited will not be delivered until a day or so before Christmas, the postmaster said and will be routed up in advance by the regular force. Congestion of the local mails and delay in delivery cards will be avoided by this method.

Postmaster Frazer said that the box will be in service until December 17, and he hopes that a large number of local patrons will take advantage of the opportunity it offers.

The moose were two of the largest brought out of Ontario this year, having an antler spread of fifty-two and fifty-five inches, respectively. Isadore Pauquette, a Canadian guide, accompanied them.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart —a masterpiece of Fisher styling

In the entire field of modern coachcraft no symbol has come to mean more to the buyer of a motor car than Body by Fisher. And never has Fisher's superiority been more strikingly exemplified than in the beautiful new bodies of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six!

Working with the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have been able to achieve in the new Chevrolet a degree of smartness, comfort and impressiveness hitherto considered exclusive to cars far higher in price.

Inside and out, you will discover scores of refinements that stamp this car as a masterpiece of modern coachwork. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar have been artistically grouped to create an unusually attractive and distinctive ensemble. Mouldings sweep back from the graceful new radiator in an unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new colors, in carefully devised combinations, lend a new individuality.

Interiors, too, are exceptional in every way. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is tailored with exceptional smartness. Seats are wider and deeper and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision for both driver and passengers. And beautiful new hardware, of modern design, lends a final note of charm.

The greater quality and beauty of the new Chevrolet-Fisher bodies have a counterpart in the many improvements which have been provided in the chassis of this Bigger and Better Six. Among these improvements are a longer, deeper, stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a quieter, smoother-shifting transmission; and engine refinements which make the new Chevrolet a car you will be happy to drive—as well as proud to own.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display in our showrooms. See it today—drive it—and learn for yourself that it is the Great American Value!

He declared that the duty of the canvassing board ends when it has canvassed the returns which have been forwarded by the county election boards to the secretary of state.

Pointing out that political candidates may ask for a recount, under certain legal conditions, in any county, Pickrel said there is no necessity for a searching investigation of election records in the various counties, for errors, or mistakes. Further delay in the declaration of the official result of the race for lieutenant governor is not justified, Pickrel stated.

Secretary Brown said he thought the board ought to express itself concerning Lieut. Gov. Brown's request for a recheck. He did not feel that it was up to him to pass upon the question by himself.

A recent recheck of the votes cast in twenty-one counties for lieutenant governor, Secretary Brown said, showed numerous discrepancies, which resulted in a net loss of thirty-seven votes for Pickrel and a net gain of eighteen votes for Brown.

As a result of this recheck, Pickrel's recent lead of 271 votes was reduced fifty-five votes, to 216. For the time being at least the Pickrel-Brown race stands: Pickrel, 916,668; Brown, 916,452.

The recheck disclosed errors ranging from a few votes up to at least 100. The 100-vote error was in Union County.

Secretary Brown announced that he will call members of the election boards of Deafiance, Franklin, Greene, Richland, Union and Wayne Counties into his offices at the statehouse to explain why incorrect figures and totals appeared on abstracts sent by these boards to the secretary of state.

Attorney Dempsey argued against further investigation by the board or the secretary of state. He expressed belief that a checkup of the remaining counties would not result in the defeat of Pickrel.

Lieut. Gov. Brown stated he has been informed that an error of sixty votes, which should be counted for him, was made in one of the sixty-seven counties in which a recheck is requested. He expressed belief that, under the circumstances, a complete statewide recheck should be made.

Friends of Lieut. Gov. Brown pointed out that if the ratio of gain for Brown that characterized the recheck in the twenty-one counties, continues throughout the other sixty-seven counties, it will result in the re-election of Brown by a majority of at least sixty-four votes.

Traveling Theatre Tours Through Germany in Bus

Leading Actors and Actresses of German Stage, Touring the Hinterlands, Blaze the Torch of Drama and Bring Joy to Rural Villages.

THE TRAVELING THEATRE

ACTRESSES ADVERTISE OWN SHOW IN "RING UP THE CURTAIN"

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—In Germany the torch of the drama is alight in the quietest town or village. The traveling players of Berlin, an organization financed by a wealthy and artistic sponsor, has in six years gained world-wide fame, and lovers of the drama in other lands are studying the methods of the motor mummies to ascertain whether their unique methods can be copied.

No mean or amateur productions are permitted by the German traveling players. If the setting is in a barn with hay and agricultural implements hastily pushed to one side, it makes no difference. The splendid orchestra plays, scenery and props are all used and a perfect lighting system adds to the reality and perfection of the production.

The idea was founded on a desire to afford steady employment for some of the ablest actors and actresses of the German stage, during the often inactive summer season. That and the wish to give people in outlying districts the opportunity to enjoy the best of plays presented by a capable cast with fine settings. A large motor bus and trailer were purchased. The bus has seats for thirty-five persons and ample luggage space. The trailer, a specially built van, holds the scenery and properties for a repertoire of six plays and one operetta. Scenery, costumes, the scenery equipment and lighting, are the best.

The company numbers within its ranks, eighteen able performers, all except two being of the original company. There are five fine musicians and five mechanics. There are six new plays and a new and lively operetta, every year. The wandering players are versatile, they play broad farce, drawing-room comedy and tragedies. Some plays are from the classics of other days, others, are plays that have had long runs in some of the finest contemporary theatres. The orchestra is as much an attraction as the plays themselves. They are all symphony musicians.

The itinerary of the traveling players is made up before the company leaves Berlin, where they spend weeks in arduous and thorough rehearsals. Thus they know exactly when and where they will

CHRISTMAS CARDS FOR DELIVERY HERE MAY BE MAILED NOW

Xenians may mail Christmas cards for local delivery from now on until the holiday.

This is made possible through the placing of a large mail box for that purpose in the lobby of the post office, it was announced Saturday by Postmaster C. S. Frazer. The box is for the accommodation of Xenia patrons, who may thus be able to write and mail their greeting cards for local delivery only, at any time, but the cards so deposited will not be delivered until a day or so before Christmas, the postmaster said and will be routed up in advance by the regular force. Congestion of the local mails and delay in delivery cards will be avoided by this method.

Postmaster Frazer said that the box will be in service until December 17, and he hopes that a large number of local patrons will take advantage of the opportunity it offers.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart —a masterpiece of Fisher styling

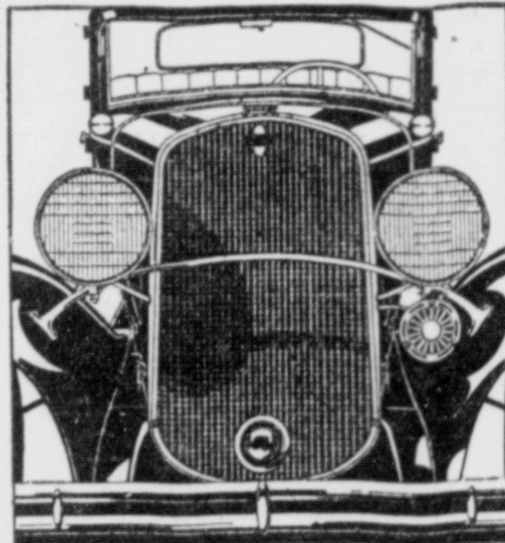

In the entire field of modern coachcraft no symbol has come to mean more to the buyer of a motor car than Body by Fisher. And never has Fisher's superiority been more strikingly exemplified than in the beautiful new bodies of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six!

Working with the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have been able to achieve in the new Chevrolet a degree of smartness, comfort and impressiveness hitherto considered exclusive to cars far higher in price.

Inside and out, you will discover scores of refinements that stamp this car as a masterpiece of modern coachwork. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar have been artistically grouped to create an unusually attractive and distinctive ensemble. Mouldings sweep back from the graceful new radiator in an unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new colors, in carefully devised combinations, lend a new individuality.

Front view of the new Chevrolet Sport Coupe

Interiors, too, are exceptional in every way. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is tailored with exceptional smartness. Seats are wider and deeper and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision for both driver and passengers. And beautiful new hardware, of modern design, lends a final note of charm.

The greater quality and beauty of the new Chevrolet-Fisher bodies have a counterpart in the many improvements which have been provided in the chassis of this

Bigger and Better Six. Among these improvements are a longer, deeper, stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a quieter, smoother-shifting transmission; and engine refinements which make the new Chevrolet a car you will be happy to drive—as well as proud to own.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display in our showrooms. See it today—drive it—and learn for yourself that it is the Great American Value!
